'COWARDLY AND CRUEL OUTLAWS'

Judge Hayden in These Words Denounces and Defies Perpetrators of Bomb Outrages

"The perpetrators of this unspeakable outrage mistake their man. They cannot intimidate me," declared Judge Albert F. Hayden of Roxbury today, commenting on the attempt of terrorists to blow up his home.

"There is no doubt in my mind that it is an attempt to punish me for my treatment of those convicted of May Day rioting in Roxbury. It is to that extent an attempt to substitute for the orderly processes of the courts the insane decisions of outlaws as cruel as they are cowardly.

"There is also no doubt in my mind that these outrages were directed from some centre of anarchistic activity in this country. The widespread plot did not 'happen,' it is part of a systematic campaign to overturn our government.

"These outrages are not merely harmful for their effect on their intended victims, but for the effect they may have on the weak-kneed and faint-hearted in high places in the discharge of future duties. I hope these new crimes of violence will awaken America to the need of deal-

SENATE DEBATE OPENS ON EQUAL SUFFRAGE

Washington, June 3.—Without opposition, Senator Watson of Indiana brought up the equal suffrage amendment in the Senate this afternoon and planned for consideration until disposed of. Senator Watson stated that he believed "there would be no need for lengthy debate." Snator Harrison of Mississippi immediately introduced an amendment providing that suffrage be granted only to white women, and demanded a vote.

D., of Philadelphia, speak tonight at the burning of the $10,000 mortgage in Tremont Temple. The building is held by the Baptist Missionary and Benevolent Society in trust for the congregation. The Temple started in 1846, and three times the edifice has been burnt.

SHOULD REDUCE FOOD PRICES, SAYS BAKER

Washington, June 3.—It is highly desirable, Secretary Baker this afternoon told the House Military Affairs Committee, that the existing high cost of foodstuffs should be cut down.

He will welcome any suggestion, he added, whereby this may be accomplished by selling to the American public the reserve stocks of foodstuffs held by the War Department that had been acquired for the army, but are not now needed by the army.

REPORT BILL TO GIVE WIRES BACK TO OWNERS

Washington, June 3.—Immediate restoration of the country's telephone and telegraph lines to private ownership was provided in a bill favorably reported to the Senate this afternoon by Senator Cummins, chairman of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee.

"Must Get World Back to Work," Says Wilson

Paris, June 3.—Following a meeting at the Hotel Crillon today, attended by President Wilson and the entire personnel, the American peace mission called an immediate conference of British, French, Italian and American experts in an endeavor to secure a compromise agreement whereby a concerted front may be presented to the German demands for amendment of the peace treaty. The object is to insure an early signing of peace.

President Wilson, who presided at the meeting, declared:

"Time is now the greatest essential. We must get the world back to work. It is necessary that America mediate the mooted problems, secure an agreement with the French and British and then insist that Germany accept the treaty."

TWO SUSPECTS IN BOMB CASES ARRESTED

Sergeant Harry Dickinson and a squad of officers, including Special Officers Gillis and Reardon, made the first arrests in the roundup of alleged anarchists today, when they gathered in Ernest Gaudet, twenty-seven, of No. 312 Dudley street, and another man.

Gaudet was booked at the Dudley street police station as a suspicious person. The other man was released after a severe grilling by the authorities. Gaudet is said by the police to have been concerned in the Roxbury riot on May Day, in which 116 persons were arrested, and several were convicted.

The police searched Gaudet's room at No. 312 Dudley street and seized much literature in a foreign language. This literature is being translated by the police. The authorities deny finding any bombs or explosives [illegible] premises.

GUARD BUILDINGS IN TERRORIST HUNT

Chief developments today from the bomb outrages in Boston, Newton and six other American cities were:

1—Nation-wide round-up of "Reds" was begun, with search for bombs, bomb-material and seditious literature. Fifteen men were arrested in Pittsburgh, where the lives were attempted of Federal Judge W. H. S. Thompson and Immigration Inspector W. W. Sibray. Boston police seized foreign literature in Roxbury house, arrested two men, but released one.

2—Homes of cabinet members guarded at Washington. Especial precautions were taken to protect the Capitol, White House and residence of President's Secretary Tumulty. Visitors to Senate and House were closely scrutinized.

3—Senator Walsh of Montana introduced bill at Washington providing severe penalties for anarchistic outrages, propaganda or display of the red flag.

4—Dynamite in Boston bombs may have been part of thirty sticks of that explosive stolen from a Boston contractor last Saturday.

5. Boston public buildings were searched for unexploded bombs. Police guards were put on many buildings. Police Superintendent Crowley appealed to public to report any suspicious talk or actions.

ANARCHISTS DYNAMITE HOUSE OF ROXBURY JUDGE

MANY MARKED FOR DEATH IN BIG BOMB PLOT

5. Bundle of Anarchist literature found on Prospect avenue, Newtonville, 150 yards from wrecked Powers home.

7. Judge Albert F. Hayden of Roxbury District Court, whose home was bombed, defies terrorists.

Walter L. Wedger, State chemist and expert on explosives, found dynamite at the Powers house in Newton. He is convinced that dynamite was likewise used to wreck the Hayden house in Roxbury, although none was found there. At the Hayden home Mr. Wedger found a piece of iron pipe, which was believed to be part of the bomb. The indications were that the bomb was about six inches long and three inches in diameter.

Deputy Chief George Neal of the State police said that he believed that the Boston bombs were made and were planted at the Hayden and Powers residences by strangers brought here for that purpose by some local organization of Anarchists.

Mr. Neal added that a Boston contractor's store of dynamite was robbed of thirty sticks of the explosive last Saturday. Diligent search was made in Bolton in Clinton and other places for the missing sticks, but without success. A theory has been formed that the Boston bombs may have held some of the explosive stolen at Bolton.

State and city police and secret service men of this Federal district concentrated their energies today on searching for the terrorists who wrecked the residences of Judge Albert F. Hayden of Roxbury Municipal Court at No. 11 Wayne street, Roxbury, and of State Representative Leland Powers at No. 66 Beaumont avenue, Newtonville.

A bundle of anarchistic literature, similar to that found elsewhere in the wake of the terrorists, was discovered on Prospect avenue, Newtonville, only 150 yards from the shattered Powers home.

Two cats and a dog were in the dining room of the Powers home at the time the explosion occurred, but escaped injury. They were frisking through the apertures in the walls today.

The explosive, which worked downward, blew a hole three feet deep in the cellar of the house and also worked outward and wiped a clump of bushes at the side of the building off the landscape. The water pipe was blown far away and the eavespouts shattered.

Report today of a light touring car being parked near the Hayden house on Wayne street for some time prior to the explosion caused a theory that the bombers travelled by motor vehicle in consummating their work of terror.

Today the full extent of the damage done by the explosive bombs was revealed. The front and sides of the Hayden residence in the Elm Hill district of Roxbury were completely wrecked. Every window in the house was shattered. Huge holes were in the roof. The interior fittings and plastering were demolished.

CHILD CUT BY FLYING GLASS.

Two holes large enough to permit a man to crawl through appeared in the side of the residence of Representative Powers. Polly, the four-and-a-half-year-old daughter of Powers, was slightly cut in the face by flying glass which flew from every pane in the house.

Judge Hayden's residence on Wayne street, two blocks from Franklin Park, was bombed at 11:35 o'clock. The explosion was felt within a radius of two miles. Judge Hayden and his family, however, with the exception of his son, Malcolm, were at their Summer home at Plymouth. Malcolm was walking up Wayne street to his home when the explosion occurred.

Representative Powers' residence was bombed forty-five minutes later. Powers, his two children and two servants were in their beds. Polly, the elder, sleeping in a bed not more than ten feet from where the bomb was placed, was cut by the flying glass.

One and one-half-year-old Samuel, in an adjoining room, slept through the explosion, which rocked the house and aroused Powers and the two servants, Rose Martin, a maid, and Sarah Fallon, a nurse. Mrs. Powers is in California.

Preceding the actual explosion was said to be a noise resembling that of a giant firecracker.

Then followed the terrific roar of the bomb, which State Chemist Walter L. Wedger declared was a piece of wrought iron pipe, either two or two and one-half inches in diameter.

"From an investigation," he said, "it would appear that the pipe was placed in the centre of the piazza, standing. We have gathered many pieces which substantiate the claim that it was wrought-iron. We found pieces in the basement of the Kelly residence, next door, and in other parts of the same house."

All around the Hayden residence today were shattered pieces of household effects. Next door at No. 15 Wayne street, the home of Edward C. Kelly, the former plumbing examiner, showed the terrific force of the bomb, which State Chemist Wedger believed contained powder and bits of iron, after the fashion of shrapnel.

SHRAPNEL PIERCES BOILER.

Every window in the Kelly house was shattered. Bric-a-brac in every room was destroyed. The telephone wires were snapped. Plaster was strewn over the floors. Pieces of the flying shrapnel from the bomb penetrated the water heating boiler in the basement. The westerly side of the house looked as though it had been struck by the contents of a giant shot gun.

In the Kelly home, Edith and Elizabeth, the younger children, were slightly cut by the shattered glass. Walter Kelly had been in the house only a few minutes when the explosion occurred. He had passed Malcolm Hayden on his way home. It was several minutes before the family, consisting of Kelley, senior, Mrs. Kelly, Edward, Jr., and Walter, Elizabeth and Ethel, realized what had happened. The elder Kelly attempted to call the fire department by telephone but found the connection broken, whereupon Walter ran out to give the alarm from the nearby box.

Malcolm Hayden, the only member of the judge's family staying at the Wayne street residence during the Summer season, was only two minutes away from his home when the explosion occurred.

Investigation of the Hayden explosion started immediately upon the arrival of Superintendent Crowley and Police Captain Perley Skillings. Judge Hayden's connection with the cases of the rioters, many of whom professed themselves to be avowed Anarchists, was the first lead. Then a pink "flier" was picked up in the debris-strewn yard of the Hayden house, which bore the heading, "Plain Words," and was signed, "The Anarchist Fighters."

CLEWS COME SLOWLY.

A hurried search party raided the New International Hall at Waumbeck and Warren streets shortly after the explosion. The police had been told that a meeting of anarchists was being held there, but on arrival found that a meeting held there had been adjourned.

Clews were slow in materializing. Mrs. M. E. Conant of No. 12 Schuyler street was sitting on the piazza of her house in the rear of that of the judge when the explosion occurred. She was thrown to the floor. Mrs. Conant saw nothing suspicious. Assistant District Attorney Webber lives in the same house and was roused by the sound of the explosion.

STRANGER FRIGHTENS GIRL.

Jeanette C. Trudeau of Hartwell street, in the rear of Wayne street, told of a stranger who she saw on that street shortly before the explosion. "I was going home directly behind the police officer on the route at about 10:45 o'clock," said the girl.

"When the officer turned into Schuyler street, a man appeared suddenly in the darkness, almost directly opposite my home, in the centre of Hartwell street. He came directly toward me and I was frightened by the surprised look on his face as he peered into mine. I told my mother of the man and we both came out, but he had disappeared. It seemed to me that he had been hiding in the shadow of our house from the policeman. He wore a straw hat."

Twenty-five minutes later John T. Mahoney of Hartwell street saw a stockily built man of between twenty-five and thirty, wearing a cap, standing between the buildings in a lot near the Judge's house.

The circular found on the lawn of the Hayden home reads as follows:

PLAIN WORDS.

The powers that be make no secret of their will to stop, here in America, the world-wide spread of revolution. The powers that be must reckon that they will have to accept the fight they have provoked.

A time has come when the social questions' solution can be delayed no longer; class war is on and cannot cease but with a complete victory for the International Proletariat.

The challenge is an old one:

Oh, "Democratic Lodge of the Autocratic Republic." We have been dreaming of freedom, we have talked of liberty, we have aspired to a better world; and you jailed us, you clubbed us, you deported us, you murdered us whenever you could.

Now that the great war, waged to replenish your purses and build a pledistam to your saints, is over, nothing better can you do to protect your stolen millions and your usurped fame, than to direct all the power of the murderous institutions you created for your exclusive defence, against the working multitudes rising to a more human conception of life.

PROSPECTS ARE WORSE.

The jails, the dungeons you reared to bury all protesting voices, are now replenished with languishing, conscientious workers; and, never satisfied, you increased their number every day.

It is history of yesterday that your gunmen were shooting and murdering unarmed masses by the wholesale; it has been the history of every day in your regime, and now our prospects are even worse.

Do not expect us to sit down and pray and cry. We accept your challenge and mean to stick to our war duties. We know that all you do is for your defence as a class; we know also that the proletariat has the same right to protect itself, since their press has been suffocated, their mouths muzzled; we mean to speak for them, the voice of dynamite through the mouth of guns.

Do not say we are acting cowardly because we keep in hiding, do not say it is abominable; it is war, class war, and you were the first to wage it under cover of the powerful institutions you called order in the darkness of your laws, behind the guns of your bone-headed slave.

RIGHT TO FREEDOM.

No liberty to you except but yours; the working people also have a right to freedom and their rights, our own rights, we have set our minds to protect at any price.

We are not many, perhaps more than you dream of though, but all are determined to fight to the last. A man remains buried in your Bastille till a hostage of the working class is left to the tortures of your police system and will never rest till your fall is complete and the laboring masses have taken possession of all that rightly belongs to them.

There will have to be bloodshed; we will not dodge; there will have to be murder; we will kill because it is necessary; there will have to be destruction; we will destroy to rid the world of your tyrannical institutions.

ONLY A WARNING.

We are ready to do anything and everything to suppress the capitalist class, just as you are doing anything and everything to supress the proletarian revolution.

Our mutual position is pretty clear. What has been done by us so far is only a warning that there are friends of popular liberty still living; only now we are getting into the fight; and you will have a chance to see what liberty-loving people can do.

Do not seek to believe that we are the Germans or the Devil's paid agents; you know well we are all class conscious men with strong determination and no vulgar liability; and never hope that your cops and your hounds will ever succeed in ridding the country of the anarchistic germ that pulses in our veins. We know how we stand with you and know how to take care of ourselves.

Besides, you will never get all of us . . . and we multiply nowadays.

Just wait and resign your fate, since privilege and riches have turned your head.

Long Live Social Revolution! Down with Tyranny!

THE ANARCHIST FIGHTERS.

Mayor and Governor Express Horror at Outrages

Mayor Peters said today:

Such acts of violence are horrible. They are aimed against the rule of the majority upon which our democratic institutions are founded. Such violence is directed against our whole social structure and cannot help but receive the universal condemnation of all right-minded people. I can hardly express my horror of such acts.

While it is true that we have new problems to solve, it is unthinkable that such acts contribute to their solution. America must progress, but not by violent means. Avenues of progress are provided by our laws and institutions. True progress cannot result from the use of violence.

Governor Coolidge authorized the following statement:

It goes without saying that I am horrified at this evidence of un-Americanism. It is most deplorable and I cannot condemn it too severely. Every effort should be made immediately to ferret out and punish the cowardly perpetrators of such acts of violence. The press of the country should wage a systematic campaign of pure Americanism to offset and blot out this despicable propaganda. Constitutional and lawful means for the remedy of grievances are provided which make inexcusable and futile crimes of this sort against the peace of America. Such acts of violence defeat their own ends and turn all liberty-loving people against their perpetrators.

Neighbor of Judge Hayden Describes Scenes When Roxbury Bomb Exploded

"I had dropped into the kitchen of my home, at No. 7 Wayne street," said Vernon C. Kerr, railway employe and neighbor of Judge Hayden, whose house was bombed by supposed "Reds" in Roxbury last night, "and I stayed there a minute or two before going to bed. It was very quiet in our section of town; not a noise on the street, not the rumble of an automobile nor the footfall of a stray passerby could be heard. It was about 11:35.

"Then, booming out of vast silence, roared the strangest sound we had ever listened to. It was a little like a terrific explosion of a Fourth of July. The noise and the concussion, which could be felt by persons in any house near the judge's house, brought us to our feet, my wife and I.

"We rushed to the door. The falling of splintered wood and the reverberation of the crash of glass in the judge's house and the demolition of window panes were the sounds which followed. Somewhere out of the wild echoes came the sound of a fire alarm rung in. Out of nothing, hundreds of spectators, clad in all manner of dress and undress, flocked about the house. Then the apparatus drew up.

"Thank God," said somebody, "no one was at home." It was only then that we noticed that the Kelley's home, next to the judge's, and the Howe's home, across the way, were almost as badly injured as the home of Judge Hayden himself."

District Attorney Tufts Takes Personal Charge of Bomb Investigation

District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts of Middlesex County, announced today that he would take personal charge of the investigation of bomb outrages in his jurisdiction.

The Grand Jury is now in session and any information secured will be immediately presented to this tribunal, so that indictments may be made at once. Early today District Attorney Tufts with State Detectives Silas P. Smith and Michael J. Barret left for Newton, the scene of the bombing of the Powers' residence.

Two Buildings Damaged By Dynamiters' Bomb At Paterson; None Hurt

By International News Service.

Paterson, N. J., June 3.—A bomb early today badly damaged a building occupied by I. Cohen and M. Morris and their families and also did damage to the house next door owned by Max Gold, silk manufacturer. No one was injured. The police believe the bomb was directed against Gold and his family. John J. Fitzgerald, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, lived in one of the damaged buildings until a few weeks ago and it is possible the bomb was intended for him.

LIEUT. DROHAN PASSES UNCOMFORTABLE NIGHT

Former Lieutenant William L. Drohan of the 101st Infantry, who was stricken with paralysis at the grave of a friend on Sunday last, passed an uncomfortable night, but his physicians hope he will improve in a few days. Colonel Edward L. Logan paid another visit and took all the flowers presented him when he resumed his seat on the bench in the South Boston court. Former Senator James F. Powers, another old-time friend, was also a visitor today to Drohan in his home.

The plans as outlined by the committee include a banquet to 1000 returned heroes, a band concert and athletic sports. It is predicted that the city government will authorize the appropriation.

ALL TOGETHER

Build Now

Repair Now

Every Dollar Put to Work Now is a Foundation Stone in Building Our Local Prosperity.

THERE'S a tremendous lot of building that must be done in this city and we've got to get at it. We need homes, and apartment buildings, and schools, to say nothing of business buildings, and unless we get them soon our city is going to suffer.

For two years all building has been stopped. Population has increased, rents have jumped. People are paying premium prices to find any kind of a place to live in.

We Need To Get Business Going

IT'S perfectly obvious that such conditions can't be permitted to last very long if this city is to be a desirable place to live and transact business in. If we don't remedy it, we'll lose a lot of prosperity that should come to us—and that reacts on every man and woman that lives here.

At the same time, we need to keep business going. The end of the war has brought us an industrial situation that we must face in common. Building is the quickest possible way to stimulate business and tide over this crucial period. And we can build as cheaply now as we will be able to for years to come.

We'll All Profit If We Work Together

WHAT we need is to get our bankers and property owners and contractors together—AT ONCE! We must all talk building, and plan building. Materials are available, railroads can make deliveries, there is sufficient labor and there's a demand for buildings that is unprecedented. Surley it's a favorable market.

Prices aren't going down soon—there's nothing to gain by delay and much we can lose. Let's get together—and do it AT ONCE.

What satisfaction it would be to have an office built as an office should be built, arranged as you've always wanted your office, everything ordered as you want it, when you want it.

And then there are the offices of your executives. Are they clean and attractive looking, with good floors and substantial walls and doors? If they aren't in good shape, remodel them NOW—men can do BETTER WORK in good surroundings.

In workrooms for your employes consider the added efficiency which comes with more space or better arrangement of space which you can accomplish by NEW PARTITIONS and other alterations.

2 KILLED BY NOTT BOMB

Watchman and Woman Victims of Explosion at Nott Home in New York

By International News Service.

New York, June 3.—The police today began a search for two young women who were seen sitting on the steps of the brownstone residence of Judge Charles C. Nott, Jr., a short time before a bomb wrecked the building, killing William Boehner, a night watchman, who was passing.

The police theory is that the women may either have carried the bomb to the Nott home or shielded the movements of a male anarchist.

It was learned definitely that Hoehner was the only victim, parts of scalp, at first believed to have been from the body of an aged woman, being identified as belonging to the watchman. Near the Nott home was found a copy of the same anarchist circular found near the homes of Attorney-General Palmer in Washington, Judge Hayden in Roxbury, Mass., and Max Gold in Paterson, N. J., clearly pointing to a general anarchistic conspiracy originating from the same centre.

Judge Nott, it is recalled today, presided a few years ago at the trial of two anarchists convicted of placing a bomb in St. Patrick's Cathedral.

Inspector Owen Eagan of the bureau of combustibles announced after several hours' investigation that the bomb set off on the Nott home steps was the most powerful he had ever dealt with in all his investigations of bomb plots. The explosion tore out the entire first and second floors of the stone building, carrying down the stairs and leaving Mrs. Nott marooned on the top floor. She escaped to the street by a fire escape.

The caretaker at the Nott home, a man named Yorkins, his wife and daughter were unhurt.

Fifteen minutes after the bomb was set off at Judge Nott's residence the news had been flashed to every policeman in New York city and the search for known anarchists was begun. The police feared that other bomb explosions would be reported before daybreak, but no other reports were received.

Government Probe of Dynamite Outrages Centres in Philadelphia

By International News Service.

Washington, June 3.—Department of Justice agents today were centering their efforts upon Pennsylvania to run down the perpetrators of the greatest terrorist plot in the history of the nation.

With the home of Attorney-General A. Mitchell Palmer, himself a Pennsylvanian, shattered by the force of a bomb explosion that blew the perpetrator to bits and showered the cabinet member with broken glass and with other explosions having occurred in Ohio, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey, investigators today were in possession of a series of clews that caused them to believe the Keystone State might be the quarters of the latest terrorist movement.

Although government agents had not yet solved the mystery of the May Day plot, when a score of bombs were placed in the New York postoffice and destined for prominent men in all sections of the country, it is known that a Philadelphia man, said to live on Chestnut street, was then under suspicion.

NATION-WIDE PLOT.

It has been established almost beyond doubt that the man who was killed by the explosion of his bomb at the Palmer residence boarded a train at Philadelphia at 6:15 last night. This developed today when the Metropolitan police found a conductor's receipt near a portion of the victim's body. The conductor was located, and he identified the slip as having been issued by him to a passenger boarding the train at that place and at that hour.

That the planting of bombs in widely-separated cities last night and early today was directed by some central organization of anarchists who plan to continue their attempts at assassination until run down by the police there is no longer any doubt. The text of the circular signed by "Anarchist Fighters" found near the home of Attorney-General Palmer is identical with the text of similar anarchistic circulars found at the scene of the bomb explosions in Roxbury, Mass., New York, Paterson, N. J., and other cities.

Attorney-General Palmer was today congratulating himself on a remarkable escape from death. He was about to retire when the explosion occurred, and shortly before had left the place where the bomb had been planted. As it was, the force of the explosion broke windows and sprinkled the Attorney-General with glass.

That the bomb was of a deadly type was shown today by the fact that the entire facade of the Palmer residence had been torn away, practically every window shattered and doors torn from their hinges by the force of the explosion.

From the remains of the bomb thrower it was judged that he was a swarthy man with dark hair and of slender build. He wore a collar of well-known make with a Chinese laundry mark, from which detectives hope to work up a case. His suit, from its tattered remnants, was black, with a green stripe. He wore Winter underwear, tan lisle socks and a white shirt of poor quality, with green and yellow stripes.

CORDITE WAS USED.

Every effort of the secret service, department of justice and police headquarters has been centred on identification of the terrorist and guarding against a similar attempt on any other official in the capital.

Lieutenant S. J. Makee, U. S. A., who is an authority on explosives, today said the bomb had been packed with cordite, not dynamite. The latter, he said, would not have done the damage done by the bomb. He said a short commercial fuse was employed as a detonator, and that its unexpected rapid burning gave the man who placed it no time to get away.

Experts from the bureau of mines and from the War Department were endeavoring today to establish the exact nature of the charge, though retarded by the lack of remnants. Nowhere in Washington is there to be found a group of persons more important in public and private life than those closely gathered in homes near that of Mr. Palmer, and all of these were endangered by the blast.

If Mr. Palmer had been on the first floor of his home he probably would have been killed, as the living rooms in the front were demolished. He went home last night on foot, but is sure he was not followed.

One angle of search for the man's remains has been unrewarded. The police have been unable to discover any of his fingers. They are continuing to look for them, believing they might furnish most important evidence through prints or rings. The head has not been found, and it is believed it was blown to bits.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt, who had returned to his home from a reception just before the explosion, was one of the first to reach the Palmer home.

REVOLVER BUTTS FOUND.

Amid the leaves and broken branches which littered the street, it was difficult to locate possible essential items of identification.

Early today the police found the butts of two automatic revolvers, however, with the maker's numbers intact. Amid the pieces of the suitcase were the torn shreds of what resembled women's clothing in which the explosive device was believed to have been wrapped. None of these was productive of any worthwhile evidence, however.

The downward force of the explosion was so great that it wrecked the section of the Palmer cellar next the street and burst several water pipes from the street main, flooding the neighborhood.

SUSPECT MAY DAY GANG.

Officials were working today upon the theory that the bomb plot of last night was carried out by those who planned the May Day terrorism. Balked in the first place in their attempt to get the infernal machines through the mails, officials believe that the terrorists, redoubling their efforts to carry out their plans, put the bombs in the hands of trusted agents. Whether these agents were dispatched from a central point or whether they were local representatives of the radical element suspected was a question that was puzzling the government agents working on the case.

The fact that the bombs were planted in widely separated sections of the country and almost simultaneously convinced investigators that instructions were issued from a centrally located "nest." Consequently, the plan of detectives was to concentrate their efforts to locate this headquarters.

At any rate, it was certain that investigators had to deal with the most perfectly organized and [illegible] anarchistic conspiracy ever [illegible] in the history of the country. And while officials were inclined to ascribe both plots to the same source, they were puzzled by the fact that up to the present time those who were marked in the May Day plot were omitted from last night's program.

HUNT FOR CLEWS FRUITLESS.

Although several times it was reported that arrests were about to be made in connection with the May Day terrorist movement, it developed today that government investigators were practically as far away from a solution as they were on the day following the outrage. And up to the present time the clews that were left in the second plot were seemingly not as productive as those which were available immediately following the May Day conspiracy. Department of Justice agents hoped to solve the case by a process of elimination, it was learned today. In the department files are the records of 20,000 men who might be suspected of having been implicated in last night's plots. These records, said to be virtually complete, have been placed in the hands of agents throughout the country and a monster "checking up" was in progress today.

It was hoped that the movements of each of these suspects could be accounted for, and as thousands were eliminated the net would draw closer upon the guilty ones, officials pointed out.

HAT CHECK IS FOUND.

One of the best leads in the hands of investigators today was the "Red" proclamation found in the effects of the man who planted the bomb at the Attorney-General's home. Although it was in no way unique, there was a possibility, they believed, of tracing down the place where it was printed. The Metropolitan police today had practically established the fact that the man who attempted the life of the Attorney-General came from Philadelphia. Near his remains was found a "hat check," such as is given by conductors in exchange for railroad tickets.

Stealing a march upon the government agents, the police early today had followed up this clew and located the conductor by whom the check was issued. He was certain, he said, that he had given it to a man who boarded the Pennsylvania Railroad train at Philadelphia at 6:15 last evening. He was unable to give any description of the man, however, as nothing in his manner had attracted any special attention. However, the clew was believed to be a valuable one and was being followed up by government investigators working in cooperation with the Philadelphia police.

The text of the "Red" dodger headed "Plain Words," which was found with the remains of the Palmer victim, was the same as the one found near the bombed home of Judge Albert F. Hayden of Roxbury, Mass.

A later examination of the Palmer premises today led officials to believe that the bomb had not been actually planted, but that the explosion was premature. There were indications, it was said, that the infernal machine was being carried in a suitcase, and that it was the man's intention to get it actually within the residence. However, there were signs that he stumbled on the stone steps of the Palmer porch, fell upon the bomb and thus exploded it.

CABINET MEMBERS GUARDED.

What strengthens this theory is the fact that the man had about 100 copies of the "Red Proclamation." This led investigators to the belief that after getting the bomb he planned to scatter copies of the dodger at all of the homes in the near vicinity. The remains of the victim were scattered over a wide territory, a portion of his scalp being found today upon the roof of a residence across the street from the Palmer home.

Guards were today placed at the homes of every Cabinet member and of Secretary to the President Tumulty, as a precaution against any further attempts that might be made to take their lives. There were no extra police at any of the public buildings or the White House, but those already on duty were instructed to be on the alert every minute.

Here's the Anarchist Threat Against Public Safety

Here is the threat made by anarchists. It is printed in "Plain Words," the leaflet that was scattered last night around the homes that were bombed by the Reds:

"There will have to be bloodshed; we will not dodge; there will have to be murder; we will kill because it is necessary; there will have to be destruction; we will destroy to rid the world of your tyrannical institutions."

BOMBS FAIL TO WORRY POLLY POWERS

Baby Daughter of Legislator Is More Concerned About the Audacious "Skeeters"

"We were not scared at all!" said little Miss Polly Powers, daughter of Representative Leland Powers of Newton, who awoke to the sound of explosives and the crash of falling glass. Little Miss Powers had just condescendingly consented to be photographed, in her night dress.

"Were we, Sam!" she appealed to her 1½-year-old brother, who was dividing his interest between the camera and his thumb. Sam, who slept through the entire affair, admitted that bombs meant nothing in his life.

"Oh, we've got one of those," [illegible] pictures are being taken, [illegible] young lady at sight of the camera. All went well until [illegible] began to investigate [illegible] the [illegible] dress and she [illegible] to button it.

Explosions were nothing to get excited about, but mosquitoes, they were something else.

PUBLIC ASKED TO AID POLICE IN BOMB PLOT

Supt. Crowley Requests That Suspicious Actions or Conversation Be Reported

Superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley issued the following statement today:

"Undoubtedly the men responsible for the explosion have been imported from New York or some other city for the purpose of spreading this terror. The police are making every effort and are working with the government agents in an attempt to clean up the case.

"The general public can help immensely by keeping their eyes and ears open and reporting to the police any suspicious actions or conversation of any persons they believe to be of anarchistic tendencies, or any place they believe the anarchists may be meeting.

"I would warn the public, however, not to investigate on their own account, but to simply notify the police and let them do the investigating. I am sure that the government agents and the police are doing all they can and that the case will soon be cleared up."

"The [illegible] police are everywhere on the job, and they are going to cover as much ground as they can and keep watch on every place they believe to be of a suspicious nature."

HAYDEN DEFIES "COWARDLY OUTLAWS"

ing with these people sternly, quickly, surely, through the courts."

Judge Hayden, who was at Manomet on Cape Cod when the explosion occurred, motored to Roxbury today with his daughter, Mildred. They were met at the house by Malcolm Hayden, the judge's son, who narrowly escaped death.

An inventory of the property convinced Judge Hayden that it was damaged to the extent of several thousand dollars.

Judge Hayden, in discussing the outrage, said further:

"My greatest relief is the fact that no one was injured. I cannot express my sorrow for the damage caused to my neighbor's property, through this attempt of some party or parties to bring injury and harm to me.

"If anybody feels that he wants to get me, he has every opportunity throughout the day. I am sitting on the bench at Roxbury Court six days a week and, should there be any more such cases as we had last month, I shall certainly fulfill my duty and still preside. I have no fear.

"While the plot was probably directed against me in particular, it was also carried out to terrorize the people. It was against law and order.

CRITICISES ANTI-RED BILL.

"While the anti-anarchist bill in the Legislature reaches it to some extent, it does not give sufficient powers. There should be a clause giving courts the right to issue search warrants, so that the police could take active steps towards ridding the community of these meeting places. Courts have the power now to issue search warrants, but the law does not cover the issuance of warrants for searching for seditious literature.

"I do not fear any attempt today, nor do I stand in any fear as a result of last night's attempt, any more than I did yesterday, before it happened.

"Fortunately, all members of my family except my son, Malcolm, were at Plymouth, forty-five miles from my home. But had Malcolm been two minutes earlier he would undoubtedly have been blown to pieces, as the bomb was placed in the vestibule of the door through which he would have entered the house.

VALUABLE PAINTINGS RUINED.

"Throughout the house the rooms today presented a scene as though some person had taken a number of charges of buckshot and had discharged them from a high-powered gun. Every room, even as far back as the kitchen, suffered from the flying shrapnel.

"A fair idea of the destruction wrought by the bomb may be had when I say that our piano is now a mass of junk, and is hardly recognizable as once having been a piano.

"I feel the loss of a number of valuable oil paintings, which were greatly admired and which I valued as highly as anything in the house.

"Brass uprights, an inch thick, on andirons in the living room were riddled. A beam one foot thick, supporting the portico, was torn away and was drilled full of holes."

In closing, Judge Hayden reiterated sympathy for other sufferers, saying:

"I am sorry for my neighbors who have suffered damage. I am sorry for those citizens in other cities who also suffered."

Maids at Powers' Home Tell the Police of Inquisitive Stranger

The first clew which might bear upon the bombing of the home of State Representative Leland Powers at No. 66 Beaumont street, Newtonville, was obtained by the Newton police today by two young women, who said a strange man was making inquiries yesterday for Mr. Powers' residence.

These young women, Miss Sarah Fallon and Miss Rose Martin, are maids in the Powers household. They were outdoors, near the house, with the Powers children. A man called to them through some nearby shrubbery: "Does Mr. Powers live here?"

"Yes," answered one of the maids.

"Is he home now?"

"No."

The man, without more inquiry, walked off down Grove Hill avenue. The maids though nothing particular of the incident and were unable today to give description of the man.

Suspect Arrested in Bomb Scare at Home of Cardinal Gibbons

By International News Service.

Baltimore, Md., June 3.—Following receipt of news that an attempt had been made to blow up a Catholic church in West Philadelphia and a report that an attempt would be possibly made on the residence of Cardinal Gibbons, a squad of police were rushed to the vicinity of the prelate's home on North Charles street early today to guard the residence of the cardinal.

As a result of the police vigilance, a man who gave his name as Charles Hobson of St. Louis, Mo., was seen to enter the vestibule of the cardinal's home shortly after daybreak. Believing they were about to catch a would-be bomber the police pounced on the man. He was taken to Central police station and charged with vagrancy. It is not believed the man had any connection with "Red" bomb plots, and Magistrate Dawkins in police court sentenced him to two months in the workhouse. The man said he had formerly been an orderly at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

JEWELRY FIRM'S PROFITS SHARED AT BANQUET

Employes of Jason Weller & Son, Boston jewelers and diamond importers, were tendered a banquet by the firm last evening in Young's Hotel. A share of the profits of the year's business was also distributed among them. Mr. Weller, despite his 77 years, was present and thanked the employes for their faithful service. Other speakers included Gustavus and William Weller, his sons, and Charles S. Jacobs, advertising manager of the firm. The latter told of the growth of the firm in the last few years.

PASTOR FOILS 2 ATTEMPTS TO BURN CHURCH

Two attempts since Sunday night to burn the Church of the Holy Redeemer in East Boston have been detected and frustrated, and to defeat future efforts at incendiarism a police guard was thrown about the edifice today.

The police connect these attempts at incendiarism indirectly with the terrorism of the last few hours, in which bombs have been used.

Both attempts to burn the church were discovered by the pastor, Rev. Patrick Riley. Sunday evening he entered the church at the request of a parishioner, who thought he saw smoke issuing from the basement. Oil-soaked rags were found back of the statue of the Blessed Virgin on the left of the altar, and the blaze had gotten a good start. Last night rags soaked in oil were found in another part of the church, where a brisk blaze was under way.

A month ago there was a fire in the Fitton School, which is on church property. It was suspected this was the work of incendiaries. Father Riley has been unsparing in his condemnation of "Red" propaganda in the United States.

BOMB SEARCH IN PUBLIC BUILDINGS

All public buildings in Boston were searched today for unexploded bombs, following the dynamite outrages of the last twelve hours. Police guards will be placed in many of these buildings beginning tonight, and will be maintained until further notice.

The Suffolk County courthouse was searched by orders of Sheriff John A. Kelíher and the sheriff's department will provide the guard in that building. Lights have been installed in dark corners of the corridors, and all other possible precautions taken. It is remembered at this time that it was only one and one-half years ago that a well-placed bomb in the court house killed two men, and caused a panic.

Daniel F. O'Connell Weds at Fort Meyer, Va.

United States Inspector of Explosives Daniel F. O'Connell of Fitchburg and Miss Rosalie Virginia Herman of Washington, who was secretary to Former United States Senator John W. Weeks, were married today at Fort Meyer, Va., by Rev. Ignatius Fealey, an army chaplain.

The groom was attended by his brother, M. Fred O'Connell, former mayor of Fitchburg, while the bride was attended by her sister, Bernadett Herman. Invited to the ceremony were United States Senator David I. Walsh, former Senator Weeks, Lieutenant-Commander Edward Nugent of the United States Navy of New Jersey and Congressman William B. McKinley of Illinois, a cousin of the late President.

Following their honeymoon, which will be spent at Atlantic City, Mr. and Mrs. O'Connell will reside in Brookline.

7,000 SAILORS TO BE IN BUNKER HILL PARADE

Seven thousand sailors and marines will parade in Charlestown on June 17. It is expected soldiers will also participate. The new post of the American Legion will be given one place of honor in the parade and mothers of service boys will be given another. The Committee on Public Celebrations will be in charge of the celebration, assisted by Mayor Peters, Clerk John Dever and Councillor Daniel McDonald. Major Frederick L. Bogan will be chief marshal.

BOYS SING AT GRAVE OF BACON IN MOUNT AUBURN

Simple services marked the burial in Mt. Auburn Cemetery today of Robert Bacon, former ambassador to France. Members of the family and a few friends were present. The commital service was read by Rev. Sherrard Billings, who was a classmate of Bacon at Groton School. A choir of a dozen boys from the Church of the Advent sang. Among those present were Colonel William A. Gaston, General William A. Bancroft, Samuel Bates and Mrs. Ellen G. Low of Groton.

REDS BITTERLY DENOUNCED BY HAYDEN

When sentence was passed on the various rioters before Judge Hayden following the May Day disturbance in Roxbury scathing denunciation of Anarchism, Socialism, Bolshevism and I. W. Wism was made by the court. He denounced those who would defeat the anti-red bill then pending in the Massachusetts Legislature.

"The day of the red flag," said Judge Hayden, "has passed. With these people probation is absolutely futile. Whether you call these people Anarchists, Reds, Socialists, Bolshevists or I. W. W., it makes no difference.

"They have no respect for our flag, which was trampled on. It is absolutely silly to attempt to Americanize such people. Only two things can be considered. They should be deported from this country or punished by the strong arm of the law."

There were 54 or more rioters before Judge Hayden following the troubles in the Roxbury district. Clashes between him and counsel for the defendants were numerous.

Attorney Edward M. Shanley, for the defence, asked for a transfer of the cases to some other court of justice. He insisted that Judge Hayden had prejudged them. The motion was denied, Justice Hayden stating that he considered himself well able to handle the cases.

Representative Leland W. Powers of Newton, a son of Congressman Samuel L. Powers, is chairman of the House committee on bills for third reading. As head of that committee he held a prominent position in the passage of the anti-Red laws. But it has been contended that his was an effort to soften the measures rather than to render them hard.

There are other men at Beacon Hill whose efforts to bring about the passage of the act were far more radical than Mr. Powers. In some circles surprise is expressed that he should have been singled out for attack.

BELGIAN KING DECORATES MRS. FISKE WARREN

Mrs. Fiske Warren, Boston society woman, and suffragist, who has been prominent in war work for the last four years, has just been decorated by King Albert and Queen Elizabeth of Belgium for her work for the relief of Belgian refugees. Word of the decoration reached Mrs. Warren through Washington, though the medal that accompanies it has not yet arrived.

During the early months of the war Mrs. Warren became most interested in the Belgian question and accepted the office of treasurer of the Belgian knitting yarn fund. The money that was available for the vast relief work was accumulated chiefly through the indefatigable efforts of the able treasurer.

Activities of the Warren family have been many and have not been confined altogether to Mrs. Warren, though she is known everywhere as a charming hostess, an ardent suffragist and a most untiring worker for charity and other worthy causes.

Her husband, Fiske Warren, is considered one of the foremost exponents of the single tax system. Practical demonstrations of his theory, showing the working out of the problems by actual experiment are in evidence in the single tax colonies at Halidon, in the village of Westbrook, Me., and at Tahanto, the Harvard colony where Mr. Warren and his family live most of the time. Another colony is in the Republic of Andorra, in the Pyrenees.

The Westbrok colony is located at the home of the great paper manufacturing plant of which Mr. Warren is the head.

The Warrens have three children, one daughter being Mrs. Samuel K. Lothrop, another Miss Marjorie Warren, a debutante, and a son.

GLARING HEADLIGHTS LEAD 28 TO LYNN COURT

Glaring headlights landed twenty-eight Greater Boston automobilists in the Lynn Court today. They were summoned by Wilbur M. Cross and Anthony A. Bonsagni of the Highway Commission, who testified all had violated the auto laws by using glaring lights. Eighteen paid $5 fines; three cases were filed on payment of $3 costs; one was fined $3; one defaulted, and five had their cases filed.

Washington, June 3.—The nomination of Thomas A. Scott of New London, Conn., to be a member of the United States Shipping Board was sent to the Senate this afternoon.

Supposed 'Drowned' Girl Went Home in a Barrel

Springfield, June 3.—The Shaker Pond "drowning" scare which has agitated this section of the country for several days, was the work of a practical joker, according to the police.

The clothing found on the shore of the pond, the police said today, was the property of a woman whose male companion, possessed of a peculiar sense of humor, forced her to walk home in a barrel after a bathing party.

This explanation was given by David J. Manning of the Massachusetts State Police, after a man's collar was found on which was written a note.

The young man and girl, both wearing underclothing, were seen on Sunday afternoon bathing in the pond, which is on the Shaker farm, about half a mile this side of the State line. The spot is quite lonely and the bathers were not seen to depart.

On the following day Myles Smith, manager of the farms, formerly owned by the North, South and Church families of Shakers, discovered the girl's wearing apparel strewn along the road near the pond and notified the police.

ARLINGTON WOMAN NOW A NOTARY PUBLIC

Miss Anna B. McHugh of No. 151 Summer street, Arlington, has just received a commission as notary public. This has been made possible under a recent amendment to the State Constitution permitting women to hold that office. Miss McHugh was private secretary to the late Junius T. Auerbach. Miss McHugh has been treasurer of St. Agnes Court, Daughters of Isabella.

How I Keep My Voice

ENRICO CARUSO

Caruso has been in grand opera for twenty-five years and the critics say he sings better every year. How does he do it? "By sweat," says Caruso, "not perspiration, that is too polite, sweat is the word." Yet at one time he was lax with his method and took on forty-five pounds of excess weight; but he sweat it out again. Now he weighs 180, all solid muscle, for he is chested like Hercules. In this interview Caruso tells us of his daily regime of living, his physical and mental exercises, his habits and his hobbies. No, he isn't a tin angel by any means. He isn't even a total abstainer from the vintage of Italy—and cigarettes he smokes in profusion, but they are specially prepared and have had eighty per cent. of the nicotine steamed out of them. Because it did not confine health matters to the dry-as-dust scientific viewpoint that is of interest only to doctors. PHYSICAL CULTURE recognizes health as a personal problem closely interwoven with the problems of love and beauty, personality, success, and happiness. It is a magazine of life problems for individual men and women, with health recognized as the foundation, but not the whole structure, of human happiness. 11-CENT FARES DEPEND UPON WAR BOARD

Higher Figure May Be Demanded With Larger Increase in "L" Employes' Wages

Whether Boston car riders shall pay eleven cents—or possibly more—for carfare depends entirely on the decision of the War Labor Board, which holds a hearing at the Federal building tomorrow to review the differences between the Boston Elevated Railway [illegible] and its employes.

If the board [illegible] the men any increase in wages it means an eleven-cent fare for Boston. The greater the increase granted by the board the more Boston will pay to ride.

It is now costing the road over nine cents per passenger to do business, President Neal stated today, and the law compels the road to collect enough revenue to "break even." This means that a ten-cent fare is inevitable under present conditions.

Any increase in wages granted the employes would mean the addition of at least another cent to the fare. Whether or not the increase might be greater than one cent would depend entirely upon the amount of the increase granted the men, it was explained.

The men demand 73 cents an hour. At present they receive 48 cents an hour. The demand therefore amounts to a 50 per cent. increase.

UP TO WAR BOARD.

At their meeting last night the men voted to give the road forty-eight hours to accede to their demands.

"The question of wages is entirely out of the hands of the trustees," said President Neal today, "and is entirely up to the War Labor Board. That body agreed, on petition of both the men and the road, to review the question of wages April 1. I have received a telegram from Washington stating that the board would hold a hearing on the question in the Federal Building here at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

"The question of laboring hours is so bound up with that of wages that the decision of the War Labor Board will practically decide both. On the other issues, I understand, the trustees have power to act, and doubtless will act.

"I am most optimistic over the situation myself, and believe that the matter will be adjusted to the satisfaction of all parties."

"Supposing the men get their full wage demands, what will the carfare in Boston be?" President Neal was asked.

MUST AWAIT AWARD.

"I have not figured it out," he explained, "as I have always found that the final awards in such cases were different from the demands.

"The law compels the road to take in enough to cover its expenses. It now costs us over nine cents per passenger. Increases granted by the War Labor Board would increase that cost. Until we learn what the exact increase is to be we cannot figure what our revenue must be, and consequently cannot tell what the carfares will be.

"I believe that the action of the Legislature in giving leave to withdraw on the bill to take over the subways was a mistake, which has resulted in the higher rates of fare.

"Under the present circumstances all we can do is to abide by the decision of the War Labor Board and figure our fare rates accordingly."

MRS. EMILIE HERRESHOFF IS GRANTED A DIVORCE

New York, June 3.—An auburn-haired woman seen accompanying John B. Francis Herreshoff of Bristol, R. I., a wealthy chemist and son of Charles F. Herreshoff, famous yacht builder, in the Hotel Astor and later seen with him in the Hotel Navarre, New York, where they registered as "M. F. Felton and wife," caused Supreme Court Justice Giegerich to sign a decree of divorce in favor of Mrs. Emelie D. Lee Herreshoff of Bristol, R. I. The court's finding was based on the report of a referee recommending that a decree be given to his wife.

Hindenburg Asked About Resuming the War

By International News Service.

Berlin, June 3.—The supreme army command, replying to the cabinet's reprimand for having sent broadcast circulars inquiring whether the German people's sentiment was for a resumption of the war, explains that the circulars were the result of numerous telegrams, letters and resolutions received by Von Hindenburg, who therefore desired an "uncolored picture of the situation."

It was reported not long ago that Von Hindenburg had appealed to the government to relinquish his command of the army and that he was planning to go to Switzerland to live.

Colonial Minister Bell has left Berlin for Versailles to consult with the peace envoys.

CHARGES MILK IS USED TO WASH HANDS

Charles Bascom, Representing Patients at Rutland, Makes Other Complaints to Supt.

Worcester, June 3.—Charges that patients at the Rutland Sanatorium were given milk in which employes of the State prison camp had washed their hands were made today by Charles Bascom, representing the general committee of patients, in testimony before the joint legislative committee appointed to sift the charges of patients against the conduct of the big hospital. Senator Edward H. Dahlberg of Brockton is chairman of the committee.

Bascom further stated that witnesses would be produced during the course of the hearing to show that Dr. Ernest B. Emerson, superintendent of the Rutland institution, was "unfair, arbitrary, not considerate, without discipline and indifferent to the protests and complaints of patients under his care."

Bascom was the first of a large number of witnesses to be heard by the committee. Among other charges he mentioned were:

That the patients were furnished poor milk; chops but three times within a year; chicken "once in a while," and "steamed eggs" in place of the boiled variety.

"Cockroaches and other vermin infest the cereals. And the milk we receive, which is always of poor grade, is purchased from the State Prison camp, where the prisoners wash their hands in the milk," declared Bascom.

"The institution library has been closed since last October," was a further grievance mentioned. Corroboration of the foregoing allegations, Bascom declared, would be established by other witnesses.

GIVE 'L' 48 HOURS TO GRANT WAGE INCREASE

Conductors and Motormen Reject Plan to Allow War Board Settle Dispute

Forty-eight hours are given the Boston Elevated Railway Company to grant a substantial increase in salary and reply to its employes' demands for a shorter workday in a resolution adopted at one of the stormiest meetings ever held in the history of the Boston Carmen's Union, at the Grand Opera House.

The motormen and conductors voted to reject the recommendations of the wage conference committee to refer wage and hours demands of the workers to the National War Labor Board.

The "48 hour" motion was jammed through against the advice of John H. Reardon, executive board member of the International; James H. Vahey, counsel for the union; President Matthew J. Higgins and Business Agent William J. Timmons. Although the word "strike" was not contained in the motion, the members in favor of it evidently were inclined to believe it was obvious, and all those with Malone and his supporters cheered the motion, which was seconded and carried in spite of efforts to talk it down on the part of the officers.

At one time during the course of the meeting it looked as though the element present who called for "drastic action" would take the meeting away from the hands of the union officials.

MONTONE GETS WEEK TO PRODUCE "MIKE"

While Angelo Montone was being given a hearing before United States Commissioner Hayes on the charge of having raised a $1 bill to $10, Nicholas Theoharis of No. 298 Shawmut avenue, testified that prior to closing his fruit store last Saturday night a man rushed into his store and purchased a package of cigarettes and gave in payment a fraudulent $10 bill.

Montone was arrested a week ago on the charge of having passed a raised $10 bill on a woman in the North End who on detecting the fraud notified the Federal authorities. Montone stated he was given the original bill by a man named "Mike" to whom he sold a diamond pin. Commissioner Hayes continued the case for another week to allow Montone an opportunity to produce "Mike."

300,000 STRIKE IN PARIS OVER EIGHT-HOUR DAY

Paris, June 3.—Disputes over the application of the eight-hour-day principle have led to another labor crisis in France. Today more than 300,000 men and women are on strike in Paris alone. The strikers are mostly metal workers and men engaged in aviation plants and clothing and shoe workers. Five thousand girls employed in the Printemps, one of the city's largest department stores, have quit work. In the northern coal fields 82,000 miners have quit work.

BATES ATTACKS REPORTER IN SCIENCE SUIT

Preliminary Plans Made for Trial of Church Cases Before Dodge as Master

Preliminary arrangements were made today at the Pemberton square courthouse for the trial jointly of several Christian Science cases. Present were former Judge Frederic Dodge, who is to sit as master at the trial, and attorneys representing the different parties involved. A feature of today's proceedings was an attack by former Governor John L. Bates, counsel for one of the parties, upon William W. Swan, a newspaperman. The hearing lasted fifty minutes.

The cases to be tried are:

A bill in equity filed March 25 by three trustees of the Christian Science Publishing Society against the directors of the Christian Science Church of Boston to prevent the removal of Lamont Rowlands, a trustee.

A bill of complaint brought by John V. Dittemore against the board of directors for the purpose of securing reinstatement as a member of the board from which he was dismissed March 17 on the grounds that he was contentious and not in agreement with the board.

SAYS HERALD IS UNFAIR.

Former Governor Bates protested tare, David B. Ogden and Lamont verbatim report of the coming proceedings. He declared that Swan had written articles for the Boston Herald which were very unfriendly to the Christian Science Church.

The attack came when one of the opposing counsel requested an extra copy of the verbatim reports for Swan, he to pay a proportionate share of the expense. Bates said he had talked with the editor of the Boston Herald and had complained to him of alleged unfairness of articles in the Herald recently on the subject.

He said that Swan had been conspicuously hostile and that the Herald had printed today a misrepresentation of what occurred yesterday at the annual meeting of the Mother Church in Boston.

Swan said to the court that he wanted a copy of the proceedings for publication without comment. He also stated that he represented the Boston Herald.

Bates stated that the New York Herald and Boston Herald were the only papers in the country that had not treated the matter fairly.

It was finally arranged that Swan would get an extra copy from one of the attorneys, who would purchase it.

CONTEMPT SUIT ON TRIAL.

The hearing was then suspended until such time as the master is notified and counsel ready to proceed and that will be the time following the contempt proceedings which are being tried before Judge Braley. These proceedings are brought by the trustees of the Christian Science Publishing Company against the directors of the Mother Church.

The counsel in the proceedings to be tried before Dodge as master are:

Representing the trustees: Sherman L. Whipple of Boston and Silas H. Strawn of Chicago. Mr. Whipple stated that former Governor Charles E. Hughes of New York will later attend.

Representing the directors: Former Governor John L. Bates and L. L. Abbott, Clifford P. Smith and Edward A. Krautkoff of Washington.

Representing John V. Dittemore: General Frank S. Streeter, William G. Thompson and Fred C. Demond, all of Concord, N. H.

The trustees are Herbert W. Eustace, David B. Ogden and Lamont Rowlands.

The directors of the Christian Science Church are: Adam H. Dickey, James A. Neal, Edward A. Merritt, William R. Rathvon and Mrs. Annie N. Knott.

WIFE ACCUSED BY LEBAUDY'S SISTER

Latter, in Contest for Estate, Charges Widow Is Addicted to Drugs

Mineola, N. Y., June 2.—Mme. Margaret Lebaudy, who shot to death [illegible] husband Jacques Lebaudy, "Emperor of the Sahara," is a drug addict and was never married to Lebaudy, according to Maria Theresa Jeanne Lebaudy De Fels, sister of Lebaudy, who has started a contest over the disposition made of his estate.

Mme. De Fels also alleges that Jacquelin Lebaudy, the young girl whom Mme. Lebaudy declared her husband was endeavoring to attack when she shot him, was not her brother's child.

Those and other sensational charges were made through Major Henry A. Uterhart, Mme. De Fels' counsel.

"Of course," said Major Uterhart, "if Mme. Lebaudy appears before Surrogate Howell here next Saturday and [illegible]es satisfactory evidence that [illegible]s married to Lebaudy that will [illegible] proceedings."

[illegible] Lebaudy, whom the Grand [illegible] refused to indict for having [illegible] her husband, claimed her husband's personal estate was valued at $200,000 at the time she applied for letters of administration, although he was generally credited with having saved several millions from the wreck of his $15,000,000 fortune. Mme. De Fels says the estate is far in excess of $200,000 in value.

Mme. De Fels further alleges that "the use of drugs has so impaired her (Mme. Lebaudy's) mind and health that she is unfit for the execution of her office or to perform the duties of an administrator."

The petitioner, whose plea to have revoked the letters of administration granted to Mme. Lebaudy on January 23 last, will attempt, it was said today, to place upon the administratrix the burden of proof that she was legally married to Lebaudy.

FISH SCHOONER RAMMED, SUNK, OFF BANKS

The Boston auxiliary fishing schooner W. M. Goodspeed was rammed and sunk in the South Channel, off George's Banks, early yesterday morning, it was learned today when the crew of the schooner arrived at the Fish Pier. All aboard were saved.

The Goodspeed, Captain George Perry in command, was hit several feet below waterline by the steel prow of the Boston steam trawler Swell, and sank in two hours. Captain Peter Anderson of the Swell put back to Boston with the rescued crew, although he had just reached the fishing grounds.

According to Captain Perry, all but one man sprang aboard the steamer as soon as her prow had buried itself in the side of the schooner, the exception running aft in his excitement, and finally being pulled over the side with a rope. The Swell was at the time proceeding under half speed.

The Goodspeed was valued at $15,000, and was the property of George E. [illegible], Captain Perry and others. The schooner was built at Gloucester in 1908.

COFFEE BROKERS HOLD MILLIONS IN BRAZIL

While coffee buyers in this country are being warned that coffee is to go to sixty cents a pound "because of the shortage," between five and six million bags of coffee are being held in Brazil for speculative purposes. This, according to Henry B. Pierce, coffee buyer for the Webster Thomas Company, accounts for the high price of coffee in this country and the future increase that is promised.

"Not shortage of shipping, nor shortage of anything else, only the desire of certain coffee brokers to speculate in the coffee market is accountable for the conditions today," the broker claims. "Certain wholesale coffee houses justify the holding of this Brazilian coffee by saying that the merchants are holding this coffee in anticipation of the demand because of the failure of the crops. This is not true. They are holding it merely to speculate with and it is grossly unfair to the public."

Coffee was about the only staple article of food that did not soar in price during the war. Throughout the entire period it remained at from 15 to 35 cents the pound, according to the grade. Today, nobody is selling coffee, even of the most inferior brand, for less than 35 cents a pound, and it runs from there to 50. And 60-cent coffee is a promise of the very near future.

Few people realize yet that coffee is distinctly in the luxury class, according to the coffee broker. Substitutes are on the market, and when the public wakes up to the fact that it is being used merely as pawns on the board for the brokers to play with, these substitutes will be more and more in demand.

"A pound of coffee makes just fifty cups," Mr. Pierce says, "while a pound of tea makes from 225 to 250 cups, according to the grade of tea used. It's easy to see that coffee is a decided luxury. When the public wakes up to this fact and leaves the coffee market and the coffee to the hoarders there will be a chance for coffee to come down to the normal level again."

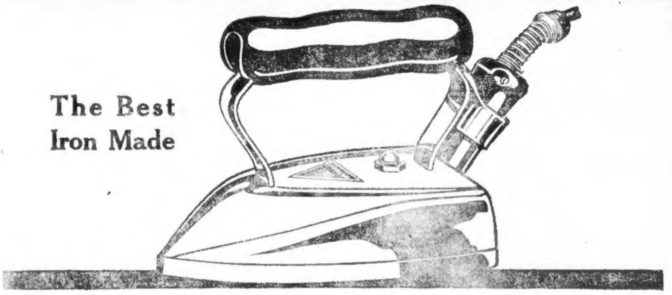
The Best Iron Made



To Stop Ironing Worries Get an American Beauty

More than a million women use American Beauty electric irons. They paid a trifle more. But that means nothing when they think of its unfailing reliability through the years it serves them.

Users of American Beauty irons are free from the probability of postponed ironings. Their electric iron does not get out of order. The flexible cord is made to meet hard service. The iron is carefully made of proper materials just like any other fine tool must be made.

It is fool-proof. It is scientifically balanced. It has a specially shaped nose that makes the work easier. The materials and the workmanship cannot be better.

Wherever electric irons are sold the American Beauty is given the highest endorsement. Remember when you are buying an electric iron, it is qualities that make for reliability that are more important than anything else.

One delayed ironing or an extra trip to the repairman will more than offset the saving that a less reliable iron offers in the purchase price.

Buy an American Beauty iron and you will find a new pleasure in your ironing. It is for you to use on the things you are particular to have ironed just so, and it is reliable enough for you to turn over to the servants without fear that they will injure it.

Regardless of its slight extra cost be sure to get an

Cocoanut Oil Fine for Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.—Advertisement.

LLOYD GEORGE FOR INDEMNITY OF 25 BILLION

France and England Trying to Reach Agreement on Final Treaty Terms

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN.

Correspondent of the International News Service.

Paris, June 3.—President Wilson conferred today with every chief expert of the American staff, obtaining their views on the German counter-proposals, as well as on the amendments to the peace treaty proposed by Premier Lloyd George.

Lloyd George, it was learned, proposes to fix the total German indemnity at $25,000,000,000. (The treaty handed the Germans set no definite limit to German indemnity payments, but exacted an initial payment of $5,000,000,000 before May 21, 1920.)

The British prime minister further favors modifying the French demands in the Saar Basin to meet some of the German objections, suggests a plebiscite in Silesia, and favors granting the Germans more merchant shipping than the treaty now provides.

The Italians and Japanese have washed their hands of the matter, declaring they are not interested in these features of the German reply.

President Wilson has told Lloyd George and Clemenceau that since these questions are most vital to France and Great Britain they should try to reach an agreement between themselves. While the President was willing to accept amendments agreeable to both Lloyd George and Clemenceau, he is insisting that whatever is decided must not mitigate the deserted punishment of the German junkers.

General Botha and General Smuts both insist that Lloyd George ask the elimination of the clause in the German treaty calling for the punishment of persons responsible for the war.

The Austrians are reported to be most anxious to finish their work of treaty making. They probably will send their reply to the treaty handed them yesterday to Clemenceau not later than the first of next week, sending replies to the financial reparation clauses later, after these have been completed by the allies.

The Council of Four met this afternoon in Premier Clemenceau's office in an endeavor to secure an agreement in details of the final reply to Germany, which, it is expected, will be presented not later than Friday.

Clemenceau and Lloyd-George conferred last night for more than an hour, but came to no definite understanding on the reply to the German proposals.

Barney Baruch and other American experts told President Wilson today that a Lloyd-George's proposal to set a definite total of the German indemnity was an excellent idea. It is understood that if concessions are granted in the Saar district Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau will make further demands for changes in frontiers. It is reported that Clemenceau is opposed to considering any concessions to the Germans until definitely assured that they sign the treaty. It is probable that measures already have been taken to feel out leaders both at Versailles and in Berlin, and the outcome of the negotiations will depend upon what is learned.

HELD FOR VIOLATION OF POSTAL REGULATIONS

Charged with attempting to pass a postal savings certificate, valued at $10, the property of Nick G. Pappas, Joseph Tarrusso of No. 163 West Canton street, was held in $500 bail following arraignment before the United States Commissioner.

Tarrusso, who is twenty-four years of age and who works in a restaurant in a Boston department store, pleaded not guilty and was committed to jail in default of bail. His case was continued to next Thursday.

COMMONWEALTH PIER IS GIVEN UP AS ARMY DOCK

Commonwealth Pier has been abandoned as an army debarkation point for Boston and the next transport to dock here, the Mongolia, will tie up next Saturday at the new army base in South Boston. All army stores at the State dock will have been removed by June 30.

The battleship New Jersey, which had been expected to land in Boston today with detachments of the 313th and 314th Machine Gun Battalions, will not reach here before June 10.

LEE RE-ELECTED HEAD OF TRAIN BROTHERHOOD

Columbus, O., June 3.—Facing no opposition W. G. Lee, Cleveland, was re-elected president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen at its triennial convention here. T. R. Dodge, Cleveland, assistant president; the eighth vice-president, A. E. King, Cleveland; grand secretary-treasurer, and D. L. Chase, Cleveland, editor and manager of "The Trainmen," the Brotherhood's publication, also were re-elected.

MALDEN FIRE DOES OVER $10,000 DAMAGE

Fire in waste and burlap that filled the one-story brick structure of the Eastern Cilligation Company at Edgeworth, Malden, caused damage estimated at over $10,000.

Fire Commissioner John F. Hannon declared he was reluctant to send his firemen to the two-alarm fire, because of the danger that beset their passage from Commercial street over the long, muddy, private way to the scene.

TRAIN KILLS BOY WHO RAN TO SEE A FIRE

While running to a fire near the Edgeworth station, an unidentified twelve-year-old boy was struck by a Boston & Maine train and died at the Malden Hospital.

The victim had black hair, wore a cap, white shirt, khaki trousers, black stockings and tan sneakers. It is believed he lived in Somerville, Wellington or Edgeworth.

EYES OF BRITISH ON CONCRETE SHIPS

By International News Service.

London, June 3.—British naval architects are watching but withholding judgment on American built concrete steamships. Only concrete barges of small tonnage are being built in Great Britain.

W. L. Scott, of Lloyds Register, told the sixtieth session of the Institution of Naval Architects that conditions favored concrete ship building in the United States more than in this country.

"Concrete ship building in the United States is on more elaborate lines than in Great Britain—if anything, on rather too elaborate lines," he said, "having regard to the recent need for immediate production, but had the war continued and the original programme of the Emergency Fleet Corporation been proceeded with, quick production, for which arrangements had been made, would undoubtedly have been realized in the near future.

"Considerable money and energy have been and are being spent on this form of shipbuilding, and it would seem that the concrete ship up to 5,000 tons deadweight is a success so far as design and structural efficiency go.

"The question of economical success, both in production and working under peace conditions, however, can only be determined by the continuation of practical experiments such as are now being carried out."

CHILD DIES AS TRAIN HITS AUTO IN MAINE

Topsham, Me., June 3.—A passenger train from Lewiston struck an automobile driven by Richard W. Tarr, at Merrill's Crossing on the State Highway to Lewiston, and his sister Bertha Tarr, twelve years old, died within 15 minutes from internal injuries received in the accident. Tarr escaped with minor injuries.

AYER MAN DIES FROM SUNSTROKE ATTACK

Ayer, June 3.—William J. Mullin, fifty-two, an active member of the Knights of Columbus and St. Mary's Church, and widely known throughout this district, was fatally stricken by sunstroke while working about his farm at Sandy Pond.

DEMANDS PROBE OF BRITISH 'MISRULE'

By WILLIAM J. BUTLER,

Universal Service Staff Correspondent. Special Cable Dispatch.

Paris, June 3.—Frank P. Walsh, chairman of the Irish-American Commission, will ask the Peace Congress to appoint a commission to investigate alleged British "atrocities" in Ireland, he told Universal Service.

Mr. Walsh is now drawing up a brief on what he terms "British misrule" in Ireland, citing "with proof, individual cases of British military outrages, gross miscarriages of justice and other crimes of this foreign military despot," to quote his own words.

"If the Peace Congress refuses to appoint a commission," Mr. Walsh said, "we shall ask the British government itself to name a committee of three to work jointly with three representatives to be appointed by the chosen delegates of the whole of Ireland and one to be appointed, probably by the Chief Justice of the United States."

The text of the letter sent to President Wilson by Mr. Walsh and ex-Governor Dunne of Illinois has been made public.

The letter asks that inasmuch as Britain has definitely denied safe-conduct for the Irish peace delegates to Paris the Irish-American commission should itself present the case of Ireland to the peace congress.

"The resolutions and instructions under which we are acting," continues the letter, "provides that if no opportunity be given to the regularly chosen representatives of Ireland we should ourselves present her case, our insistence upon her right of self-determination and to international recognition of the republican form of government established by her people.

"We therefore petition you to use your good offices to secure a hearing for us before a special committee of the four great powers so that we may discharge the duty imposed upon us by our convention."

The letter points out that the Irish-American commission does not claim to hold any commission or authority from the people of Ireland, but desires solely to present the resolutions of the recent Irish-American convention at Philadelphia with a brief argument in support thereof.

The letter also says that while that convention was unofficial and Messrs. Walsh and Dunne claim no official authority in a governmental sense, the convention was composed of 5,132 delegates representing millions of Americans in every State of the Union and of all shades of political opinion, religion and occupation.

Citing this as sufficient reason, and the fact that "the matter of our departure is pressing us," the letter urges President Wilson to give the matter speedy attention.

AMERICAN TROOPS BATTLE BOLSHEVISTS

London, June 3.—American troops are active against Bolshevist forces in the region of Vladivostok.

BELGIAN KING IN CLOSE TOUCH WITH U. S.

By ROBERT J. PREW,

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, June 3.—The profound knowledge of the resources of the United States possessed by the King of the Belgians was revealed to thirteen Congressmen from various States who recently returned to Paris after a visit to Brussels.

Standing in the reception room of the royal palace at Brussels, King Albert talked cotton with Congressman Lazaro of Lousiana; cattle and rice with Hatton W. Sommers and Tom Connolly of Texas; flour with W. H. Newton of Minneapolis, and fruit, asparagus and wine with John E. Baker of California.

Other members of the congressional party are William A. Ashbrook, Ohio; William R. Green and C. W. Ramsyer, Iowa; Burton L. French and Addison T. Smith, Idaho; W. G. Hastings, Oklahoma; James P. Glynn, Connecticut, and Porter H. Dale, Vermont, and with each of them the King was able to show surprisingly minute knowledge of the products of his State.

This was the most important engagement of the party after an automobile tour across the battle-scarred regions of Northern France and Flanders. Afterwards they were entertained at lunch at Louvain by Cardinal Mercier.

The meal was served in a room used as a hospital ward for civilians wounded during the hostilities. It was bombed fourteen times by aviators, one bomb tearing away the whole of the ceiling and killing a number of people taking shelter in the cardinal's palace.

ARREST 3 BOYS AS WAR RELIC THIEVES

The arrest of three boys clears up the mysterious disappearance of German war relics from freight cars in the Essex street yards of the Boston & Albany railroad, the police believe.

According to the police the boys had succeeded in getting away with six German rifles and had started off with a machine gun, but it was too heavy and was abandoned.

MACHINE SHOP MEN AT LAWRENCE RAISED

Lawrence, June 3.—Employés of all machine shops of this city have been served with notice that hereafter they would enjoy a 48-hour week with 54 hours pay. This move on the part of the machine shops averted a strike, which, it is said, was to have culminated this week. It was reported that a majority of men in the union favored taking the 48-hour week with the 54 hours pay in preference to a demand already framed, demanding a flat 15 per cent. The men will meet to decide whether or not the terms offered by the shops are agreeable.

SETS FIRE TO CELL, THEN HANGS HIMSELF

North Adams, June 3.—With his handkerchief tied to the bars of his cell, Virginia Zuccha, thirty-six years, an Austrian, who had been declared insane, hanged himself in the police station. Zuccha had a delusion that he was being pursued and had set fire to the padded cell. He was removed to another, where he committed suicide.

Physicians Explain How It Helps Put Renewed Vim and Energy Into the Veins of the Weak, Run-down, Infirm and Aged—Often Increases Their Strength in Two Weeks' Time.

IGNACE JAN PADEREWSKI

U.S. JUDGE G.W. ATKINSON

When widely known men of the highest calibre come out frankly and publicly endorse a product which they have personally found valuable for building up the health and strength, it must arouse the interest of every thinking person in Nuxated Iron, which is today being used by over three million people annually to help create red blood, power and endurance.

Dr. T. Alphonsus Wallace, a physician of many years' experience and formerly of the British Naval Medical Service, says: "It is the men of blood and iron—on a par with the war hardened fellows returning from camp and fields—who will forge ahead in the business and political life of the country today.

"Without iron there can be no strong, red-blooded men or healthy, rosy-cheeked women, and unless this strength giving iron is obtained from the foods we eat it must be supplied in some form that is easily absorbed and assimilated. For this purpose I always recommend organic iron—Nuxated Iron—which I have used so successfully both in civil life and for convalescing soldiers that I am absolutely convinced of its effectiveness for helping to build red blood, strength and endurance."

FORMER U.S. SENATOR WILLIAM E. MASON

HON. ANTHONY CAMINETTI

Of great importance to the public should be the strong endorsement of Nuxated Iron as a preparation of great merit as a tonic, and blood builder given by former U. S. Senator William E. Mason, who has the distinction of being one of the really big men of the nation. His championship of Pure Food and Drug legislation, his fight for the rural free delivery system, and his strong advocacy of all bills favoring labor has made him a national figure and endeared him to the hearts of the working man and the great masses of people. Senator Mason says: "I have often said I would never recommend medicine of any kind. I believe that's the doctor's place. However, after the hardest political campaign of my life, without a chance for a vacation, I had been starting to court every morning with that horrible, tired feeling one cannot describe. I was advised to try Nuxated Iron. As a pioneer in the pure food and drug legislation, I was at first loathe to try an advertised remedy, but after advising with one of my medical friends, I gave it a test. The results have been so beneficial in my own case, I made up my mind to let my friends know about it, and you are at liberty to publish this statement if you so desire. I am now 65 years of age and I feel that a remedy which will build up the strength and increase the power of endurance of one at my age should be known to the world."

Equally interesting is the opinion of Judge G. W. Atkinson of the United States Court of Claims, at Washington, who for twenty years has been in the public service as Judge, Governor, Member of Congress and U. S. District Attorney. He says: "It is without hesitation that I recommend Nuxated Iron to persons who in the stress of physical or mental labors have permitted the system to become debilitated, the body exhausted or the nerves run-down. It has restored my appetite and my vitality. I feel that I have dropped off the burden of months of toil in the few weeks that I have been following the very simple directions for the use of Nuxated Iron."

Ignace Jan Paderewski, Premier of Poland and master pianist, at a time when his untiring work for his country over-taxed his strength and impaired his health had recourse to Nuxated Iron to help rebuild his wasted forces and restore his old-time health and strength. He says: "I am using Nuxated Iron very frequently and consider it as an excellent tonic." With the strain imposed by two years of almost ceaseless work in the cause of his fatherland it is easily understood why he sought the sustaining benefit of Nuxated Iron.

Then there is United States Commissioner of Immigration Hon. Anthony Caminetti who, despite his 64 years and a life which calls him to all parts of the country in all climates and all seasons, is today more active and alert than many a younger man would be in meeting the strain of his official duties.

Commissioner Caminetti says: "After weeks of busiest confinement to office duties, I find in Nuxated Iron the true tonic qualities which help bring one's physical being to that state of fitness which is the desire of every healthy minded man or woman. Nuxated Iron I recommend to whoever feels the need of a tonic restorative for debilitation, exhaustion and overwork."

Dr. George H. Baker, formerly Physician and Surgeon Monmouth Memorial Hospital of New Jersey, says: From a careful examination of the formula and my own tests of Nuxated Iron, I feel convinced that it is a preparation which any physician can take himself or prescribe for his patients with the utmost confidence of obtaining highly beneficial and satisfactory results.

MANUFACTURERS' NOTE: Nuxated Iron which is recommended above is not a secret remedy but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.—Advertisement.

WIFE ACCUSED BY LEBAUDY'S SISTER

Latter, in Contest for Estate, Charges Widow Is Addicted to Drugs

Mineola, N. Y., June 3.—Mme. Margaret Lebaudy, who shot to death [illegible] husband Jacques Lebaudy, "Em[illegible]or of the Sahara," is a drug ad[illegible]ct and was never married to Lebaudy, according to Maria Theresa [illegible]anne Lebaudy De Fels, sister of [illegible]ebaudy, who has started a contest over the dispositi[illegible] made of his estate.

Mme. De Fels also alleges that Jacquelin Lebaudy, the young girl whom Mme. Lebaudy declared her husband was endeavoring to attack when she shot him, was not her brother's child.

Those and other sensational charges were made through Major Henry A. Uterhart, Mme. De Fels' counsel.

"[illegible] course," said Major Uterhart, "[illegible] Lebaudy appears before Surrogate Howell here next Saturday and [illegible]es satisfactory evidence that [illegible] married to Lebaudy that will [illegible] proceedings."

[illegible] Lebaudy, whom the Grand [illegible] refused to indict for having [illegible] her husband, claimed her husband's personal estate was valued at $200,000 at the time she applied for letters of administration, although he was generally credited with having saved several millions from the wreck of his $15,000,000 fortune. Mme. De Fels says the estate is far in excess of $200,000 in value.

Mme. De Fels further alleges that "the use of drugs has so impaired her (Mme. Lebaudy's) mind and health that she is unfit for the execution of her office or to perform the duties of an administrator."

The petitioner, whose plea to have revoked the letters of administration granted to Mme. Lebaudy on January 23 last, will attempt, it was said today, to place upon the administratrix the burden of proof that she was legally married to Lebaudy.

FISH SCHOONER RAMMED, SUNK, OFF BANKS

The Boston auxiliary fishing schooner W. M. Goodspeed was rammed and sunk in the South Channel, off George's Banks, early yesterday morning, it was learned today when the crew of the schooner arrived at the Fish Pier. All aboard were saved.

The Goodspeed, Captain George Perry in command, was hit several feet below waterline by the steel prow of the Boston steam trawler Swell, and sank in two hours. Captain Peter Anderson of the Swell put back to Boston with the rescued crew, although he had just reached the fishing grounds.

According to Captain Perry, all but one man sprang aboard the steamer as soon as her prow had buried itself in the side of the schooner, the exception running aft in his excitement, and finally being pulled over the side with a rope. The Swell was at the time proceeding under half speed.

The Goodspeed was valued at $15,000, and was the property of George B. Grueby, Captain Perry and others. The schooner was built at Gloucester in 1908.

COFFEE BROKERS HOLD MILLIONS IN BRAZIL

While coffee buyers in this country are being warned that coffee is to go to sixty cents a pound "because of the shortage," between five and six million bags of coffee are being held in Brazil for speculative purposes. This, according to Henry B. Pierce, coffee buyer for the Webster Thomas Company, accounts for the high price of coffee in this country and the future increase that is promised.

"Not shortage of shipping, nor shortage of anything else, only the desire of certain coffee brokers to speculate in the coffee market is accountable for the conditions today," the broker claims. "Certain wholesale coffee houses justify the holding of this Brazilian coffee by saying that the merchants are holding this coffee in anticipation of the demand because of the failure of the crops. This is not true. They are holding it merely to speculate with and it is grossly unfair to the public."

Coffee was about the only staple article of food that did not soar in price during the war. Throughout the entire period it remained at from 15 to 35 cents the pound, according to the grade. Today, nobody is selling coffee, even of the most inferior brand, for less than 35 cents a pound, and it runs from there to 50. And 60-cent coffee is a promise of the very near future.

Few people realize yet that coffee is distinctly in the luxury class, according to the coffee broker. Substitutes are on the market, and when the public wakes up to the fact that it is being used merely as pawns on the board for the brokers to play with, these substitutes will be more and more in demand.

"A pound of coffee makes just fifty cups," Mr. Pierce says, "while a pound of tea makes from 225 to 250 cups, according to the grade of tea used. It's easy to see that coffee is a decided luxury. When the public wakes up to this fact and leaves the coffee market and the coffee to the brokers there will be a chance for coffee to come down to the normal level again."

Origin of Boot Heels

IT is believed that boot heels are of Persian origin and were originally attached to sandals in order that the wearers might keep their feet above the burning sands. Heels nine inches high have been known. When high heels were introduced in Venice they were called "châpineys" and were highly decorated.

Rich Silver Coins

IN the Republic of Honduras the silver currency was for years minted from Socorro bullion. This nearly always contains a certain proportion of gold, which used not to be separated before it went to the mint; so that Honduras silver coins prior to 1911 generally contain a certain proportion of gold.

What Has Happened So Far

Francis Morgan, a young New York millionaire, heavily interested in oil, decides to take a vacation and drops into the office of his father's old associate, Thomas Regan, a Wall Street operator. Regan has long had a grudge to pay for a raw deal from the elder Morgan. He sees a chance to get even with the young man by suggesting that he might be interested in a search for the treasure of the buccaneer, Sir Henry Morgan, the secret hiding place of which he (Regan) has reason to believe is known to Alvarez Torres, an adventurer. Francis jumps at the idea, arranges with Torres to go to Central America and proceeds alone, Torres to follow. Once there he hires a schooner and starts for the scene of the supposed hidden treasure. He sees on the shore a girl looking at him through a glass and rows ashore. To his surprise the girl, who is very beautiful, seizes his arm and pulls him toward the jungle.

The theme of this story was suggested to the author by Charles W. Goddard.

CHAPTER II.

THIS time his mouth opened to speech that was aborted on his lips by the stiff thrust of the muzzle of the weapon into his abdomen.

"If you ever come back—the Madonna forgive me—I shall shoot you myself."

"Guess I'd better go, then." He turned to the skiff, toward which he walked in stately embarrassment, half-filled with laughter for himself and for the ridiculous and incomprehensible figure he was cutting.

Endeavoring to retain a last shred of dignity, he took no notice that she had followed him. As he lifted the skiff's nose from the sand he was aware that a faint wind was rustling the palm fronds. A land breeze was darkening the water close at hand, while far out across the mirrored water the outlying keys of Chiriqui Lagoon shimmered like a mirage above the dark crisping water.

Woman's Weapon

A sob compelled him to desist from stepping into the skiff and to turn his head. The strange young woman, revolver dropped to her side, was crying. His step back to her was instant and the touch of his hand on her arm was sympathetic and inquiring. She shuddered at his touch, drew away from him, and gazed at him reproachfully through her tears. With a shrug of shoulders to her many moods and of surrender to the incomprehensibleness of the situation, he was about to turn to the boat when she stopped him.

"At least you——" she began, then faltered and swallowed. "You might kiss me good-bye."

She advanced impulsively with outstretched arms, the revolver dangling incongruously from her right hand. Francis hesitated a puzzled moment, then gathered her in to receive an astounding passionate kiss on his lips ere she dropped her head on his shoulder in a breakdown of tears. Despite his amazement he was aware of the revolver pressing flatwise against his back between the shoulders. She lifted her tear-wet face and kissed him again and again, and he wondered to himself if he were a cad for meeting her kisses with almost equal and full as mysterious impulsiveness.

With a feeling that he did not in the least care how long the tender episode might last, he was startled by her quick drawing away from him, as anger and contempt blazed back in her face and as she menacingly directed him with the revolver to get into the boat.

He shrugged his shoulders as if to say that he could not say no to a lovely lady, and obeyed, sitting to the oars and facing her as he began rowing away.

"The virgin save me from my wayward heart," she cried, with her free hand tearing a locket from her bosom and, in a shower of golden beads, flinging the ornament into the water midway between them.

A Farewell Kiss

From the edge of the jungle he saw three men, armed with rifles, run toward her, where she had sunk down in the sand. In the midst of lifting her up they caught sight of Francis, who had begun rowing a strong stroke. Over his shoulder he glimpsed the Angelique, close-hauled and slightly heeling, cutting through the water toward them. The next moment one of the trio on the beach, a bearded elderly man, was directing the girl's binoculars on him. And the moment after, dropping the glasses, he was taking aim with his rifle.

The bullet spat on the water within a yard of the skiff's side, and Francis saw the girl spring to her feet, knock up the rifle with her arm and spoil the second shot. Next, pulling lustily, he saw the men separate from her to sight their rifles and saw her threaten them with her revolver into lowering their weapons.

The Angelique, thrown up into the wind to slop away, foamed alongside, and with an agile leap Francis was aboard, while already the skipper putting the wheel up, the schooner was paying off and filling. With boyish zest Francis wafted a kiss of farewell to the girl, who was staring toward him, and saw her collapse on the shoulders of the bearded elderly man.

"Cayenne pepper, eh, those damned horrible, crazy-proud Solanos," the skipper flashed at Francis with white teeth of laughter.

"Just bugs—clean crazy, nobody at home," Francis laughed back, as he sprang to the rail to waft further kisses to the strange damsel.

Before the land wind the Angelique made the outer rim of Chiriqui Lagoon and the Bull and Calf, some fifty miles farther along on the rim, by midnight, when the skipper hove to to wait for daylight. After breakfast, rowed by a Jamaica negro sailor in the skiff, Francis landed to reconnoitre on the Bull, which was the larger island and which the skipper had told him he might find occupied at that season of the year by turtle-catching Indians from the mainland.

And Francis very immediately found that he had traversed not merely thirty degrees of latitude from New York but thirty hundred years, or centuries for that matter, from the last word of civilization to almost the first word of the primeval. Naked, except for breech-clouts of gunny-sacking, armed with cruelly heavy hacking blades of machetes, the turtle-catchers were swift in proving themselves arrant beggars and dangerous man-killers.

The Bull belonged to them, they told him through the medium of his Jamaican sailor's interpretating, but the Calf, which used to belong to them for the turtle season, now was possessed by a madly impossible Gringo, whose wreckless, dominating ways had won from them the respect of fear for a two-legged human creature who was more fearful than themselves.

A Pencilled Note

While Francis, for a silver dollar, dispatched one of them with a message to the mysterious Gringo that he desired to call on him, the rest of them clustered about Francis' skiff, whining for money, glowering upon him, and even impudently stealing his pipe, yet warm from his lips, which he had laid aside him in the stern sheets. Promptly he had laid a blow on the ear of the thief who seized it and recovered the pipe.

Machetes out and sun glistening their clean-slicing menace, Francis covered and controlled the gang with an automatic pistol and, while they drew apart in a group and whispered ominously, he made the discovery that his own sailor-interpreter was a weak brother and received his returned messenger.

The negro went over to the turtle-catchers and talked with a friendliness and subservience the tone of which Francis did not like. The messenger handed him his note, across which was scrawled in pencil:

"Vamos"

"Guess I'll have to go across myself," Francis told the negro whom he had beckoned to him.

"Better be very careful and utmostly cautious, sir," the negro warned him. "These animals without reason are very problematically likely to act most unreasonably, sir."

"Get into the boat and row me over," Francis commanded shortly.

"No, sir; I regret much to say, sir," was the black sailor's answer. "I signed on, sir, as a sailor to Captain Trefethen, but I didn't sign on for no suicide, and I can't see my way to rowin' you over, sir, to certain death. Best thing we can do is to get out of this hot place that's certainly and without peradventure of a doubt goin' to get hotter for us if we remain, sir."

In huge disgust and scorn Francis pocketed his automatic, turned his back on the sacking-clad savages and walked away through the palms. Where a great bowlder of coral rock had been upthrust by some ancient restlessness of the earth, he came down to the beach. On the shore of the Calf, across the narrow channel, he made out a dinghy drawn up.

A Heated Argument

To paddle across the channel was a matter of moments, but scarcely was he on the beach of the Calf when further inhospitality greeted him on the part of a tall, barefooted young man, who stepped from behind a palm, automatic pistol in hand, and shouted:

"Vamos! Get out! Scat!"

"Ye gods and little fishes!" Francis grinned, half-humorously, half-seriously. "A fellow can't move in these parts without having a gun shoved in his face. And everybody says get out pronto."

"At least you might kiss me good-by," she faltered, looking up at Francis.

"Nobody invited you," the stranger retorted. "You're intruding. Get off my island. I'll give you half a minute."

"I'm getting sore, friend," Francis assured him truthfully, at the same time, out of the corner of his eye, measuring the distance to the nearest palm trunk. "Everybody I meet around here is crazy and discourteous and peevishly anxious to be rid of my presence, and they've just got me feeling that way myself. Besides, just because you tell me it's your island is no proof——"

The swift rush he made to the shelter of the palm left his sentence unfinished. His arrival behind the trunk was simultaneous with the arrival of a bullet that thudded into the other side of it.

"Now, just for that!" he called out, as he centred a bullet into the trunk of the other man's palm.

The next few minutes they blazed away, or waited for calculated shots, and when Francis' eighth and last had been fired, he was unpleasantly certain that he had counted only seven shots for the stranger. He cautiously exposed part of his sun-helmet, held in his hand, and had it perforated.

The stranger stepped out, and Francis could not help admiring his fine figure despite the fact that a dirty pair of canvas pants, a cotton undershirt and a floppy sombrero constituted his garmenting. Further, it seemed he had previously known him, though it did not enter his mind that he was looking at a replica of himself.

"I Want Your Ears!"

"Talk!" The stranger sneered, throwing down his pistol and drawing a knife. "Now we'll just cut off your ears, and maybe scalp you."

"You're sweet-natured and gentle animals in this neck of the woods," Francis retorted, his anger increasing. He drew his own hunting knife, brand-new from the shop and shining. "Say, let's wrestle and cut out this ten-twenty-and-thirty knife stuff."

"I want your ears," the stranger answered, pleasantly, as he slowly advanced.

"Sure. First down, and the man who wins the fall gets the other fellow's ears."

"Agreed." The young man in the canvas trousers sheathed his knife.

"Too bad there isn't a moving picture camera to film this," Francis girded, sheathing his own knife. "I'm sore. I feel like a heap bad Injun. Watch out. I'm coming in a rush! Any way and every way for the first fall!"

Action and word went together, and his glorious rush ended ignominiously, for the stranger, apparently braced for the shock, yielded the instant their bodies met and fell over on his back, at the same time planting his foot in Francis' abdomen, and, from the back purchase on the ground, transforming Francis's rush into a wild, forward somersault.

The fall on the sand knocked most of Francis' breath out of him, and the flying body of his foe, impacting on him, managed to do for what little breath was left him. As he lay speechless on his back he observed the man on top of him gazing down at him with sudden curiosity.

"What d'you want to wear a mustache for?" the stranger muttered.

"Go on and cut 'em off," Francis gasped, with the first of his returning breath. "The ears are yours, but the mustache is mine. It is not in the bond. Besides, that Fall was straight jiu jitsu."

"You said, 'anyway and every-way for the first fall,'" the other quoted, laughingly. "As for your ears, keep them. I never intended to cut them off, and now that I look at them closely the less I want them. Get up and get out of here. I've licked you. Vamos! and don't come sneaking around here again! Git! Scat!"

What's in a Name

In greater disgust than ever, to which was added the humiliation of defeat, Francis turned down to the beach toward his canoe.

"Say, little stranger, do you mind leaving your card?" the victor called after him.

"Visiting cards and throat-cutting don't go together," Francis shot back across his shoulder, as he squatted in the canoe and dipped his paddle. "My name's Morgan."

Surprise and startlement were the stranger's portion, as he opened his mouth to speak, then changed his mind and murmured to himself, "Same stock—no wonder we look alike."

Still in the throes of disgust, Francis regained the shore of the Bull, sat down on the edge of the dugout, filled and lighted his pipe, and gloomily meditated. Crazy—everybody—was the run of his thought. Nobody acts with reason. I'd like to see old Regan try to do business with these people. They'd get his ears.

Could he have seen, at that moment, the young man of the canvas pants and of familiar appearance, he would have been certain that naught but lunacy resided in Latin American; for the young man in question, inside a grass thatched hut in the heart of his island, grinning to himself as he uttered aloud, "I guess I put the fear of God into that particular member of the Morgan family," he just began to stare at a photographic reproduction of an oil painting on the wall of the original Sir Henry Morgan.

"Well, Old Pirate," he continued grigning, "two of your latest descendants came pretty close to getting each other with automatics that would make your antediluvian horse-pistols look like 30 cents."

He bent to a battered and worm-eaten sea-chest, lifted the lid that was monogramed with an "M" and again addressed the portrait.

"Well, old pirate Welshman of an ancestor, all you've left me is the old duds and a face that looks like yours. And I guess if I was really fired up, I could play your Port-au-Prince stunt about as well as you played it yourself."

A Striking Resemblance

A moment later, beginning to dress himself in the age-worn and moth-eaten garments of the chest, he added: "Well, here's the old duds on my back. Come, Mister Ancestor, down out of your frame, and dare to tell me a point of looks in which we differ."

Clad in Sir Henry Morgan's ancient habiliments, a cutlass strapped on around the middle and two flint-lock pistols of huge and ponderous design thrust into his waist scarf, the resemblance between the living man and the pictured semblance of the old buccaneer who had been long since resolved to dust, was striking.

"Back to back against the mainmast
Held at bay the entire crew . . ."

As the young man, picking the strings of a guitar, began to sing the old buccaneer rouse, it seemed to him that the picture of his forbear faded into another picture and that he saw:

The old forbear himself, back to a mainmast, cutlass out and flashing, facing semi-circle of fantastically clad sailor cutthroats, while behind him, on the opposite side of the mast, another similarly garbed and accoutred man, with cutlass flashing, faced the other semi-circle of cut throats that completed the ring about the mast.

The vivid vision of his fancy was broken by the breaking of a guitar string which he had thrummed too passionately. And in the sharp pause of silence, it seemed that a fresh vision of old Sir Henry came to him, down out of the frame and stood beside him, real in all seeming, plucking at his sleeve to lead him out of the hut and whispering a ghostly repetition of:

"Back to back against the mainmast
Held at bay the entire crew."

The young man obeyed his shadowy guide, or some prompting of his own profound intuition, and went out the door and down to the beach, where, gazing across the narrow channel on the beach of the Bull, he saw his late antagonist, back up against the great bowlder of coral rock, standing off an attack of sack-clouted, machete-wielding Indians with wide sweeping strokes of driftwood timber.

And Francis, in extremity, swaying dizzily from the blow of rock on his head, saw the apparition that almost convinced him he was already dead and in the realm of the shades of Sir Henry Morgan himself, cutlass in hand, rushing up the beach to his rescue. Further, the apparition, brandishing the cutlass and laying out the Indians right and left, was bellowing:

"Back to back against the mainmast
Held at bay the entire crew."

As Francis's knees gave under him and he slowly crumpled and sank down, he saw the Indians scatter and flee before the onslaught of the weird pirate figure and heard their cries of:

"Heaven help us!" "The Virgin protect us!" "It's the ghost of old Morgan!"

A Similar Errand

Francis next opened his eyes inside the grass hut in the midmost centre of the Calf. First in the glimmering of sight of returning consciousness, he held the pictured lineaments of Sir Henry Morgan staring down at him from the wall. Next it was the younger edition of the same, in three dimensions of living, moving flesh, who thrust a mug of brandy to his lips and bade him drink. Francis was on his feet ere he touched lips to the mug, and both he and the strange man, moved by a common impulse, looked squarely into each other's eyes, glanced at the picture on the wall and touched mugs in a salute to the picture and to each other ere they drank.

"You told me you were a Morgan," the stranger said. "I am a Morgan. That man on the wall fathered my breed. Your breed?"

"The old buccaneer's," Francis said. "My first name is Francis. And yours?"

"Henry—straight from the original. We must be remote cousins or something or other. I'm after the foxy, niggardly, old Welshman's loot."

"So'm I," said Francis, extending his hand. "But to hell with sharing."

"The old blood talks in you." Henry smiled approbation. "For him to have who finds. I've turned most of this island upside down in the last six months, and all I've found are these old duds. I'm with you to beat you if I can, but to put my back against the mainmast with you any time the needed call goes out."

"That song's a wonder," Francis urged. "I want to learn it. Lift the stave again."

And together, clanking their mugs, they sang:

"Back to back against the mainmast,
Held at bay the entire crew."

CHAPTER III.

BUT a splitting headache put a stop to Francis' singing and made him glad to be swung in a cool hammock by Henry, who rowed off to the Angelique with orders from his visitor to the skipper to stay at anchor, but not to permit any of his sailors to land on the Calf. Not until late in the morning of the following day, after hours of heavy sleep, did Francis get on his feet and announce that his head was clear again.

"I know what it is—got busked off a horse once," his strange relative sympathized, as he poured a huge cup of fragrant black coffee. "Drink that down. It will make a new man of you. Can't offer you much for breakfast except bacon, seabiscuit and some scrambled eggs. They're fresh. I guarantee that, for I dug them out this morning while you slept."

"That coffee is a meal in itself," Francis praised, meanwhile studying his kinsman and ever and anon glancing at the portrait of their relative.

"You're just like him, and in more than mere looks," Henry laughed, catching him in his scrutiny. "When you refused to share yesterday, it was old Sir Henry to the life. He had a deep-seated antipathy against sharing, even with his own crews. It's what caused most of the troubles. And he's certainly never shared a penny of his treasure with any of his descendants. Now, I'm different. Not only will I share the Calf with you, but I'll present you with my half as well, lock, stock and barrel, this great hut, all these nice furnishings, tenements, hereditoments, and everything, and what's left of the turtle eggs. When do you want to move in?"

"You mean * * *?" Francis asked.

"Just that. There's nothing here. I've just about dug the island upside down and all I found was the chest there full of old clothes."

"It must have encouraged you."

"Mightily. I thought I had a hammerlock on it. At any rate, it showed I'm on the right track."

"What the matter with trying the Bull?" Francis queried.

"That's my idea right now," was the answer, "though I've not another clue for over on the mainland. Those old-timers had a way of noting down their latitude and longitude whole degrees out of the way."

Ten north and 90 east on the chart might mean 12 north and 92 east," Francis concurred. "Then, again, it might mean 8 north and 88 east. They carried the correction in their heads, and if they died unexpectedly, which was their custom, it seems, the secret died with them."

"I've half a notion to go over to the Bull and chase those turtle-catchers back to the mainland," Henry went on. "And then, again, I'd almost like to tackle the mainland clue first. I suppose you're got a stock of clues, too?"

"Sure thing," Francis nodded. "But, say, I'd like to take back what I said about not sharing."

"Say the word," the other encouraged.

"Then I do say it."

Their hands extended and gripped in ratification.

"Morgan & Morgan, strictly limited," chortled Francis.

"Assets, the whole Caribbean Sea, the Spanish main, most of Central American, one chest full of perfectly no good clothes, and a lot of holes in the ground." Henry joined in the other's rumor. "Liabilities, snake-bite, thieving Indians, malaria, yellow fever"——

"And pretty girls with a habit of kissing total strangers one moment, and of sticking up said total strangers with shiny silver revolvers the next moment," Francis cut in. "Let me tell you about it. Day before yesterday, I rowed ashore over on the mainland. The moment I landed, the prettiest girl in the world pounced out upon me and dragged me away into the jungle. Thought she was going to eat me or marry me. I didn't know which. And before I could find out, what's the pretty damsel do but pass uncomplimentary remarks on my mustache and chase me back to the boat with a revolver. Told me to beat it and never come back, or words to that effect."

Where Was It?

"Whereabouts on the mainland was this?" Henry demanded with a tenseness which Francis, checking his reminiscence of the misadventure did not notice.

"Down toward the other end of Chiriqui Lagoon," he replied. "It was the stamping ground of the Soland family, I learned; and they are a red-peppery family, as I found out. But I haven't told you all. Listen. First she dragged me into the vegetation and insulted my mustache; next she chased me to the boat with a drawn revolver, and then she wanted to know why I didn't kiss her. Can you beat that?"

"And did you?" Henry demanded, his hand unconsciously clinching by his hide.

"What could a poor stranger in a strange land do? It was some armful of pretty girl——"

The next fraction of a second Francis had sprung to his feet and blocked before his jaw a crushing blow of Henry's fist.

"I * * * I beg your pardon," Henry mumbled and slumped down on the ancient sea chest. "I'm a fool, I know, but I'll be hanged if I can stand for——"

"There you go again," Francis interrupted, resentfully.

"As crazy as everybody else in this crazy country. One moment you bandage up my cracked head, and the next moment you want to knock that same head clean off of me. As bad as the girl taking turns at kissing me and shoving a gun into my midrif."

"That's right, fire away, I deserve it," Henry admitted ruefully; but involuntarily began to fire up as he continued with: "Confound you, that was Leoncia."

"What if it was Leoncia? Or Mercedes? Or Dolores? Can't a fellow kiss a pretty girl at a revolver's point without having his head knocked off by the next ruffian he meets in dirty canvas pants on a notorious sand-heap of an island?"

"When the pretty girl is engaged to marry the ruffian in the dirty canvas pants"——

"You don't mean to tell me," the other broke in excitedly.

"It isn't particularly amusing to said ruffian to be told that his sweetheart has been kissing a ruffian she never saw before from off a disreputable Jamaica nigger's schooner," Henry completed his sentence.

The Morgan Temper.

"And she took me for you," Francis mused, glimpsing the situation. "I don't blame you for losing your temper, though you must admit it's a nasty one. Wanted to cut off my ears yesterday didn't you?"

"Yours is just as nasty, Francis, my boy. The way you insisted that I cut them off when I had you down—ha! ha!"

Both young men laughed in hearty amity.

"It's the old Morgan temper," Henry said. "He was by all the accounts a peppery old cuss."

"No more peppery than those Solanos you're marying into. Why, most of the family came down on the beach and peppered me with rifles on my departing way. And your Leoncia pulled her little popgun on a long-bearded old fellow who might have been her father and gave him to understand she'd shoot him full of holes if he didn't stop plugging at me."

"It was her father, I'll wager, old Enrico himself," Henry exclaimed. And the other chaps were her brothers."

"Lovely lizards!" ejaculated Francis. "Say, don't you think life is liable to become a trifle monotonous when you're married into such a peaceful, dove-like family as that?" He broke off, struck by a new idea. "By the way, Henry, since they all thought it was you and not I, why in thunderation did they want to kill you? Some more of your crusty Morgan temper that peeved your prospective wife's relatives?"

Henry looked at him a moment, as if debating with himself, and then answered.

Henry looked at him a moment, as if debating with himself, and then answered:

"I don't mind telling you. It is a nasty mess, and I suppose my temper was to blame. I quarreled with her uncle. He was her father's youngest brother——"

"Was?" interrupted Francis with significant stress on the past tense.

"Was, I said," Henry nodded. "He isn't now. His name was Alfaro Solano, and he had some temper himself. They claim to be descended from the Spanish conquistadores, and they are prouder than hornets. He'd made money in logwood, and he had just got a big henequin plantation started farther down the coast. And then we quarreled. It was in the little town over there—San Antonio. It may have been a misunderstanding, though I still maintain he was wrong. He always was looking for trouble with me—didn't want me to marry Leoncia, you see.

"Well, it was a hot time. It started in a pulquera where Alfaro had been drinking more mescal than was good for him. He insulted me, all right. They had to hold us apart and take our guns away, and we separated swearing death and destruction. That was the trouble—our quarrel and our threats were heard by a score of witnesses.

"Within two hours the commissario himself and two gendarmes found me bending over Alfaro's body in a back street in the town. He'd been knifed in the back, and I stumbled over him on the way to the beach. Explain? No such thing. There were the quarrel and the threats of vengeance, and there I was, not two hours afterward, caught dead to right with his warm corpse. I haven't been back in San Antonio since, and I didn't waste any time in getting away. Alfaro was very popular—you know the dashing type that catches the rabble's fancy. Why, they couldn't have been persuaded to give me even the semblance of a trial. Wanted my blood there and then, and I departed very pronto.

"Next up at Bocas del Toro, a messenger from Leoncia delivered back the engagement ring. And here you are. I developed a real big disgust, and, since I didn't dare go back with all the Colanos and the rest of the population thirsting for my life, came over here to play hermit for a while and dig for Morgan's treasure. Just the same, I wonder who did stick that knife into Alfaro. If ever I find him, then I clear myself with Leoncia and the rest of the Solanos, and there isn't a doubt in the world that there'll be a wedding. And now that it's all over, I don't mind admitting that Alfaro was a good scout, even if his temper did go off at half-cock."

Clear as Print

"Clear as print," Francis murmured. "No wonder her father and brothers wanted to perforate me. Why, the more I look at you the more I see we're as like as two peas except for my mustache——"

"And for this——" Henry rolled up his sleeve, and on the left forearm showed a long, thin white scar. "Got that when I was a boy. Fell off a windmill and through the glass roof of a hothouse."

"Now listen to me," Francis said, his face beginning to light with the project forming in his mind. "Somebody's got to straighten you out of this mess, and the chap's name is Francis, partner in the firm of Morgan & Morgan. You stick around here, or go over and begin prospecting on the Bull, while I go back and explain things to Leoncia and her people——"

"If only they don't shoot you first before you can explain you are not," Henry muttered bitterly. "That's the trouble with those Solanos. They shoot first and talk afterward. They won't listen to reason unless it's post mortem."

"Guess I'll take a chance, old man," Francis assured the other, himself all afire with the plan of clearing up the distressing situation between Henry and the girl.

WAR FILM AT MAJESTIC A THRILLER

By FRED J. McISAAC,
Dramatic Critic.

You sometimes read about crowds struggling to get into a theatre, but when you go there yourself you usually have little trouble in gaining admittance, if you have the price. Last night at the Majestic, however, I actually had to struggle to make the doorkeeper—got stepped on by a bigger man than I am, and got glared at by a number of angry women.

The cause was the premier of "The Unpardonable Sin," a picturization of Rupert Hughes' exceedingly realistic novel of what went on in Belgium before the German line broke.

I suppose there is a public which likes to look at poignant suffering on the part of others; if it were not so the leading photoplay producers would not persist in feeding it to us. "The Unpardonable Sin" contains two or three unspeakable atrocities which it would be impossible for normal-minded persons to sit through if it were not for the grim thought that the Germans are now paying most intensively for the misery they caused, and will pay for the next hundred years.

But quite aside from the unutterable atrocity which is the foundation of Hughes' novel, "The Unpardonable Sin" is a very unusual photoplay.

In the first place director Marshall Neilan had a great big story to work upon. Hughes' book is teeming with incident; it has plot enough for a score of the ordinary five reel photodramas. The producer's problem was to get everything in, and not how to pad.

As a result he started right in with his drama in the very first flash and never let up until the tale was finished. Those of us who are exasperated at the deliberation of the ordinary motion picture, its wealth of highly unnecessary details, and its inane and rambling method of spinning a yarn, will find "The Unpardonable Sin" free from sins of that description.

The story deals with an American mother and daughter who were caught in a convent at Louvain when the war broke out, and outraged by German officers. A sister in America starts for Belgium to rescue them, and marries a young American who has volunteered for Belgium relief work merely for convenience, no unmarried women being admitted within the Belgian frontiers.

Blanche Sweet, a beautiful and versatile screen star, plays the dual role of the two sisters, one a pathetic Belgian refugee, and the other an American relief worker clad in furs.

The pictures of German brutality are blood-curdling, and as I said before not calculated to make you feel charitable towards Germany, now imploring mercy on bended knees. After eight or nine reels of thrilling drama the picture comes to a climax with a wild race between a Ford relief truck and a German high-powered car over moor and fen for the sanctuary of the Dutch frontier.

And when the American relief workers get the German soldiers across the line into Holland they turn upon them and pummel them, to the great joy of the audience.

Matt Moore, Edwin Stevens and other well-known film folk are seen to fine advantage. The performance is unnecessarily lengthened by a reel showing Lake Itaska and a couple of simpletons who went canoeing upon it, and by an unnamed young woman in white who reeled off highfaluting sentiments in such a nervous fashion that I couldn't understand a word. In the words of the immortal Koko in "The Mikado" they never would be missed.

Miss Bayes planned originally to remain five weeks—she will have been here four when she closes—but she hasn't been well lately and has been advised to take a rest. 'PINAFORE' IS GIVEN WARM WELCOME

Welcomed by an audience as large as it was good natured and appreciative, "H. M. S. Pinafore" made the port of Boston again last night, docking at the Plymouth Theatre. One of the best loved of Messrs. Gilbert and Sullivan's comic operas, although hardly up to the high standard set by the same company in "The Mikado," "Pinafore" as presented by Fortune Gallo's artists was excellently costumed and staged and received a warm greeting.

Unhappily handicaped by a halting start, due atonement was made before the end of the first act by pure artistry on the part of the stumblers, who redeemed themselves nobly, although Max Bendig, whose orchestra has given Bostonians such a pronounced musical treat, was called upon more than once to prove that he is a polished prompter as well as a conductor with far above the usual foresight and feeling.

Among the male parts that of the Boatswain, although comparatively minor in importance when considered with the whole, was easily lifted from obscurity by the powerful baritone and real acting of John Willard, a most capable performer, whose "For he is an Englishman" did his powers real credit. William Danforth gave a most humorous portrayal of the depraved Dick Dead-Eye and Frank Moulan made a sufficiently pompous Admiral. Bertram Peacock was a pleasing Captain and Warren Proctor, whose tenor seemed far better than his knowledge of his lines, made an acceptable Ralph Rackstraw.

It is perhaps regrettable that Miss Gladys Caldwell, whose work with the Society of American Singers at the Park Theatre, New York, last season, attracted so much favorable attention, could not have been cast in a more prominent role than that of Hebe. Strikingly beautiful and with a voice that cannot fail to win her highest future honors, she played Hebe to perfection, and "His sisters, his cousins and his aunts" was never more charmingly sung.

Greta Risley was happily chosen as Buttercup and proved that the choice had been wisely made. She is a finished artist who never fails to make the most of her opportunities. Mabel Day worked hard to present a faithful portrayal of Josephine, and succeeded in a measure. Both male and female choruses sang tunefully and well.

A pleasing interpolation in the first act was the sailors' hornpipe, danced in sprightly fashion by Miss Sylvia Tell, whose antics earned an encore.

"Pinafore" will be presented again tonight and Wednesday evening and will be sung at the Thursday and Saturday matinees. "The Mikado," with which the company won its way in Bostonians' hearts, will again be given on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings, concluding the Boston engagement.

TREMONT TEMPLE—Seats went on sale this morning for "Bolshevism on Trial" at Tremont Temple, where it will be shown beginning next Monday afternoon, June 9th. This photoplay promises to be the talk of the town because it deals with the greatest problem of the day. This picture deals with a colony of Americans who decide to find liberty and freedom in a Socialistic colony. Instead of the freedom and happiness they desire they are struck by a wave of Bolshevism which engulfs the whole colony, laying waste to everything that comes in its path.

REVIVE "NIOBE" AT COPLEY THEATRE

H. and E. Poulton's three-act farce, "Niobe," was given by the Jewett Players at the Copley Theatre. Miss Jessamine Newcome appeared in the title role opposite H. Conway Wingfield as Peter Amos Dunn. Others in the cast were Nicholas Joy, E. E. Clive, Viola Roach, Mary Hamilton, Cameron Matthews and Leonard Craske.

The play is old fashioned and, like the character of Boxer in Shaw's play, "Getting Married," so eminently correct that one knows beforehand what it is going to say. The dialogue is often amusing, especially in the scene between Niobe and young Mr. Griffin in Act 2, capitally played by Miss Newcome and Mr. Joy. The plot is constructed along conventional lines, and is amusing by reason of its delightful consistency.

The story is of a rare Greek statue which comes to life, and the character of the revivified Niobe, galvanized suddenly into life in the very bosom of a conventional and not very harmonious British family, furnishes the comedy.

Miss Newcome was charming in appearance, and gave a finished performance. She is a pillar of strength on the opening night of any play, always secure in speech, easy in action, and conveying security to the entire scene.

The others were good, and the ensemble performance generally smooth.

WALDORF THEATRE—The patrons of the Waldorf Theatre have in the first half-week bill as shown yesterday a most pleasure-giving program of vaudeville and photoplays. Heading the vaudeville was Chief Caupolican, an Indian with a fine baritone voice. Others on the bill were Tony Williams and company in the one-act comedy, "The Brooklyn Handicap"; Lee Stoddart, comedian and mimic; the Claytons in a variety of offerings, and Wire and Walker in athletic feats. On the screen there were shown the latest news pictures, a comedy, and the photoplay, "Girl of My Dreams," picturing Billie Rhodes.

PEMBERTON INN—Flying over the Atlantic Ocean between courses, the startling twentieth century innovation at Pemberton Inn, the South Shore's dining palace de luxe is outdoing in popularity the dance and the cabaret. Every man, woman and child visiting this favorite seaside resort seems to wish to avail him or herself of the chance to emulate Lieutenant-Commander Read by flitting over the sea in a late model seaplane.

GAYETY THEATRE—The "Maids of America" have been famous in burlesque for years. Therefore, when they appeared at the Gayety Theatre yesterday they were greeted by an audience that filled every seat. And the people found the new edition of the "Maids of America" to be just as wholesome and clean and meritorious as all those which had preceded it.

ST. JAMES THEATRE—For the first three days of this week Douglas Fairbanks will star in his new $261,000 seven-reel production, "The Knickerbocker Buckaroo," a comedy and the latest Pathe News will also be shown.

The vaudeville consists of five acts headed by Lord and Fuller. Thursday, Friday and Saturday Norma Talmadge will appear in her latest success, "The New Moon."

Coming Events

SHUBERT THEATRE—"Open Your Eyes," a film drama depicting the dangers of social disease, produced under the auspices of the United States Public Health Service, will begin its Boston engagement at the Shubert Theatre next Monday, June 9. There will be two performances daily of this photoplay with a mission, which presents in startling and vivid fashion the problems of the social evils, and itself offers the solution to them. So powerful are its lessons that physicians who have viewed it strongly recommend it for mothers and daughters as well as for fathers and sons.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE — Carl Hunt's season of Summer musical comedies at the Plymouth Theatre will be inaugurated next Monday with "Oh Boy," the tuneful Bolton-Wodehouse and Kern piece which delighted all Boston during its phenomenal run at the Wilbur Theatre last season. Manager Hunt plans to produce a different musical comedy every week during the Summer, at popular prices. Among those in the cast of "Oh Boy" will be Dorothy Maynard, the popular musical comedy star, Laura Hamilton, Donald Roberts, John Norton and a score of vivacious, pretty girls.

PARK SQUARE THEATRE—"A Voice in the Dark," the play which A. H. Woods will present at the Park Square Theatre next Monday night, is a novelty in that half of its story is seen but not heard, and half heard but not seen. No less than nine scenes are required to develop the plot, which is said to parallel with singular timeliness the current sensational Barre mystery. A splendid company will present "A Voice in the Dark," of which Willard Mack, the actor-dramatist; Olive Wyndham and William B. Mack are the featured players.

MODERN AND BEACON THEATRES—Again has David W. Griffith dipped into drama of the home and of pastoral life typifying the devotion of a true, loving daughter of the countryside in his latest contribution to the screen, "True Heart Susie," which was one of the two photoplays to be shown for the first time in Boston yesterday at the Modern and Beacon Theatres. It is a simple tale directly told in the magical manner of the masterly Griffith through his agent, the camera, a love story of compelling and impressive charm exploiting the tremendous self-sacrifice of a girl who is in love with a young man with ambitions for education.

PARAGON PARK—Paragon Park and the famous Palm Garden are handling capacity crowds daily. Never before so early in the season has Greater Boston flocked to its favorite Summer playground in such numbers so early in the season. The vast variety of entertainment readily explains the unprecedented popularity of Paragon.

WALDRON'S CASINO—Lew Kelly and Jack Singer's supporting company are at Waldron's Casino for the week. There is small need to say more, for the patrons of burlesque know what this means. The book, lyrics, music, singing and dancing are all that were to be expected of such a combination and the net result is about three hours of the merriest, cleanest sort of lively entertainment.

NORUMBEGA PARK—The Liberty Players in "The Cinderella Man" at Norumbega Park are attracting big audiences every afternoon and evening. The play is an ideal one to watch in the warm late Spring weather, and the players are excellent in their parts. The park has a variety of other attractions for guests.

BOSTON THEATRE—Nazimova in "The Red Lantern" is as big a success on the screen at the Boston Theatre this week as she was in "Out of the Fog," recently shown at this same house.

MORE MONEY FOR AL JOLSON

J. J. Shubert arrives in Boston this morning in order to affix his signature to the new contract between the Messrs. Shubert and Al Jolson, which will go into force immediately and which will assure the services of the great singer and comedian for the New York Winter Garden for seven more years. As Rachel served Jacob Al Jolson has served the Winter Garden during the last seven years, having seen himself rise from an absolute failure on the opening night to the greatest success that any individual star in America has achieved. Mr. Jolson now stands before the American public pre-eminent and alone.

In spite of the fact that he is daily flooded with offers from moving picture people, concert managers and other producers, "His Heart Is True to Poll," and Jolson would no more think of leaving the Messrs. Shubert and the New York Winter Garden than he would become a professional golfer for pay. The nature of the contract between the Messrs. Shubert and Mr. Jolson cannot, of course, be disclosed, but it is enough to state that under its clauses Mr. Jolson will receive an enormous sum.

GLOBE THEATRE—A most generous film program of first-run photoplay subjects was presented yesterday at Loew's Globe Theatre. Norma Talmadge was shown in "The New Moon," a thrilling story of Russia in the days of the revolution. The role offers Miss Talmadge opportunities to display her emotional gifts to best advantage. The accompanying photoplay showed Montagu Love in "Through the Toils."

ARLINGTON THEATRE—That popular play, "The Rosary," was revived yesterday by the Arlington Stock Company and gives a fine production.

The plot centres around happenings in a family not far from New York city. Comedy mingles with the more serious parts of the play. An excellent interpretation is given by Mr. Ayres and Miss Robinson in the leading roles.

To Talk on Radio

"The Design of an Efficient Short Wave and Tennas" will be the theme of R. W. Fitz, Bachelor of Science, at the meeting of the New England Amateur Wireless Association in Franklin Institute Thursday evening.

IRENE BORDONI SCORES HIT AT KEITH'S

Irene Bordini, the petite French artiste, accompanied by Lieutenant Gitz-Rice, heads Keith's bill this week in a singing act which was very well received. The audience stood as Miss Bordoni sang "La Marseillaise" with much effect. Several of Lieutenant Gitz-Rice's songs were rendered by Miss Bordoni, including "Dear Old Pal," which she sang in French.

Billie Reeves, the pantomime star, staggered around the stage to the amusement of a big audience, in a skit entitled "The Right Key, But the Wrong Flat," assisted by Carroll Clucas and Dolly Lewis. Other numbers on this week's bill include the Flying Mayos, Misses Shaw and Campbell, McMahon, Diamond and Roosvare; James H. Cullen, Franker Wood and Bunnee Wyde, Burns and Frabito and James Dutton & Co.

CHARLESTOWN FORMS BUNKER HILL LEGION

Bunker Hill Post of the American Legion was formed at the Knights of Columbus Building, High street, Charlestown, with 300 service men present. Captain John P. Buckley presided and was chosen temporary chairman. Paul H. Keating was chosen temporary secretary. Among the speakers were Edward F. Dalton, Leon A. Splaine, the Rev. Dr. Charles Talmage and Joseph Mullane of Colonel Bogan Camp, U. S. W. V., the latter offering the new post the use of the Spanish war veterans' headquarters.

SEEK REFERENDUM ON SUFFRAGE AMENDMENT

Washington, June 3.—A proposed amendment to the national suffrage amendment that the latter upon being finally acted favorably by Congress be submitted to State conventions instead of State Legislatures for ratification, thereby providing for a referendum, was introduced in the Senate by Senator Underwood of Alabama.

Debate on woman suffrage was expected to open in the Senate today. Vote on the amendment was not anticipated, however, until tomorrow or Thursday.

CHAPLAIN CONOVER HOME WITH A BELGIAN BOY

Newport, R. I., June 3.—Rev. James P. Conover, formerly of St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H., but now of East Greenwich, R. I., has arrived at his Summer home in the suburbs of Newport, after serving a year overseas as an army chaplain with the rating of Captain. Mr. and Mrs. Conover's youngest son, Richard, was killed in the battle of Cantigny. Mr. Conover brought home with him a little Belgian boy.

BATTERY B FARM TO SERVE AS "AIR" STATION

Worcester, May 3.—If Governor Coolidge will consent, Battery B Farm in Paxton will be converted into a municipal landing ground and "air station" for Worcester. The farm is owned by the State and is used for Summer camps and artillery drills. As soon as the Governor gives his consent hangars and markers will be erected. The station would be used for air mail delivery on the Boston, Worcester, Springfield, Albany route.

FIREMEN RESENT SLEEPING 7 IN ROOM

Lawrence, June 2.—A delegation of four firemen, stationed at the Lawrence Central Fire Station, appeared before the City Council to complain that the sleeping quarters at the firehouse were not satisfactory. An estimate of the cost of remedying the condition was submitted by the building inspector which will mean an addition to the present building to cost $2,750. Seven men have to sleep in one room. The matter will be taken in hand by a special committee.

NOTICE · BOARD MEETING · TODAY

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States has arranged for these leaders in government and business to sit in and discuss with you new developments vitally affecting your business.

IT WILL be a remarkable meeting. Hines, Hurley, Rea, Cummins, Douglas, Barnes, Ferguson, Warburg, Redfield, and a score of others will in turn talk things over as one business man to another

How is it possible, you say, for my individual business to obtain the counsel of such men? In one, and only one way. Your business is the nation's business. These public-spirited leaders give generously—what money could not buy—because of their loyalty to the nation's business.

And the nation's business is your business. Take transportation, for example:—What is the nation to do with the railroads, how control, how regulate this great American institution?

Since every pound of goods that comes or goes across your counter and through your cash register, is dependent on transportation, haven't you a direct, personal interest in how the government lets go of the railways?

Very well; Senator Cummins, whose task it will be to draw up railroad legislation, addresses our Board Meeting. Also Director General Hines and President Rea of the Pennsylvania. Also a group of men of your kind, the detached but highly interested public, suggests a plan.

And while we're on the question of moving goods, we'll hear from Manager Sanders of the Leyland Line on what rivers will do for our business. President Seiberling, of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, another clearheaded executive, will bring highways into the picture of your—and the nation's—problems of distribution.

Rail, river, and road, and my business,—but what of over-seas distribution? Chairman Hurley will ask "Must we stay off the seas?" while President Ferguson of the Newport News Shipbuilding Company will suggest that "freedom of the seas" may mean one thing to one nation; but quite another to another.

What does foreign trade really mean to this country? Does it mean anything to you?

President George Ed. Smith, of the American Manufacturers' Export Association, Herbert Houston, and eight others including official representatives of England, France and Italy, will lay plans before the Board.

The bad health of our public utilities, and the diagnosis; the larger questions of finance; the building situation; the business man's program for the year; wheat, the farmer and the city man; the general business conditions,—all will be reported to our Board by such authorities as Paul M. Warburg, Julius Barnes, Secretary Redfield, and Archer Wall Douglas.

THE nation's business is your business. You can't get away from it; you personally are tied up in it. The success of your business is gauged by your knowledge of the business trend.

Of course you know that this board meeting cannot take place physically in your office. But the Chamber of Commerce of the United States has done the next best thing. It brings this meeting to your desk through the June number of the Nation's Business;—as it assembles similar meetings every month in the year for your benefit and for alert and successful business men generally.

In the JUNE Number

Getting into High Again — Senator Edge

SEND THIS TO YOUR MEMBER OF CONGRESS

PETITION TO THE NEW ENGLAND SENATORS AND CONGRESSMEN TO RETAIN THE DAYLIGHT SAVING LAW.

Sign this petition. Have your friends sign it.

To the New England Senators and Congressmen in the Congress of the United States:

Whereas, A rider calling for the repeal of the present Daylight Saving law has been attached to the Agricultural bill now in Congress;

Whereas, Daylight Saving having been tried last Summer was found so successful and beneficial that it was welcomed again this Summer;

Whereas, Daylight Saving is heartily approved by manufacturers, merchants, professional persons, clerks, artisans, school and college authorities and the great body of the public, with the exception of certain agriculturists;

Whereas, The increased use of daylight hours is a preventive of accidents in mechanical lines, a tremendous saving of artificial illumination, a benefit to the eyes and an extension of the hours of outdoor recreation;

The undersigned respectfully urge you to exercise your utmost influence and your vote to prevent the passage of this rider to the Agricultural bill.

We urge this to insure the continuation of an economic benefit to the great majority of men, women and children of this country.

BUSINESS MEN CALL FOR LIGHT SAVING

Colgate Says Present Plan is "Daylight Living;" Plan New Bill

Washington, June [illegible] ...ght saving was characte... "daylight living" by Sidney M... ...gate & Co... ...tinuance of the ... before the House Interstate Commerce Committee at a hearing on a bill to repeal the act.

Mr. Colgate, speaking for the International Daylight Savings Association and the Merchants' Association of New York, as well as his own company, declared that daylight saving was beneficial during the war and produced thrift, stating that it would be lamentable to throw to the winds the lesson learned during th a period by the present plan.

Sentiment in the House has been so opposed to the re... rider in the agricultural bill, that those favoring repeal have abandoned their effort to put the measure through as it stands and are calling for a separate bill.

Josephine D. Sutton, representing A. Lincoln Filene of Boston, said New England favor... the present law and New England ... as well as laboring men wanted it continued. In 1919, she said, there were 38,000,000 listed as workers, of this number 12,000,000 were engaged in agricultural, forestry and animal industry. Therefore, she said, taking for granted that the 12,000,000 in the so-called farming class all wanted the law repealed, there would be two-thirds of the workers who wanted the law enforced.

Farmers who did their own work were not inconvenienced by the law, and only those farmers who employed gang and crew labor by the day were seriously requesting that it be repealed.

Indications are that the committee will favorably report a bill to repeal the law and that it will pass the House. The Senate seems now to be against repeal.

Girls! Make beauty lotion for a few cents—Try it!

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle and tan lotion, and complexion beautifier, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles and blemishes disappear and how clear, soft and rosy-white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless and never irritates.—Advertisement.

Petition to the Secretary of War and Secretary of the Navy to send Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Home with Six Months' Pay

Sign this petition, get your friends to sign it, and forward it to the Boston American, 80 Summer st., Boston, Mass.

To the Honorable Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War.

To the Honorable Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy:

The undersigned respectfully urge you to return to their homes as soon as possible the soldiers, sailors and marines who have accomplished so brilliantly every object America had in the war.

We urge, also, that you obtain the necessary authority to pay these men their military wages for six months, or for some sufficient period after their discharge from the army until they can obtain useful and remunerative employment.

We urge this as an act of simple justice by a great nation to its heroes.

Menke to Cover Title Battle for American

The International News Service has obtained Frank G. Menke, one of the country's foremost writers on boxing, to cover the Willard-Dempsey fight for the heavyweight championship of the world at Toledo, July 4.

Mr. Menke is known from coast to coast as one of the best judges and critics of boxers in the country.

He will go to Toledo weeks before the big event and will write a daily story on what the rival fighters are doing to prepare themselves for the struggle.

His stories will tell clearly just what the chances of each man are and what the ringsiders think about it.

Young O'Connell to beat Joe Gibbs.

Young Sullivan to beat Mike Dimio.

Young Ross to beat Eddie Kelly.

By RINGSIDE.

Charley Parker will be back in action at the Armory A. A. show at the Grand Opera House tonight with his celebrated kayo punch. For the past two months the South End lightweight has been doing all his fighting in the Webster League, as he has been suffering from a fractured hand.

Parker says he is now as good as ever and prepared to eliminate a flock of boxers for the dear old lightweight championship of New England. Said title is now held by Frankie (Young) Britt, who has [illegible] nothing but like a world [illegible] last three starts.

Parker will start his new campaign by meeting Phinney Boyle of Lowell in the twelve round feature [illegible] tonight. It will be the second meeting between these hectic [illegible]. When they exchanged blows three months ago at Lawrence, Boyle received the big award.

The South End favorite was unable to score with his kayo wallop in that match. Whenever he let drive Boyle would either cleverly sidestep or beat [illegible] the punch. The Lowell lightweight avers he will repeat his performance at the Grand Opera House.

It will be Boyle's second fight within five days. On the holiday he was stopped in a round by Young Kloby at Lawrence. Without taking any credit away from the Y. D. champion due him for his victory, Boyle asserts he was the victim of a punch which would stop any of the local lightweights.

He says that after his contest with Parker he will try to get another contest with Kloby, confident in the belief he will reverse the result.

There will be fifty-four athletes on the team, thirty-six of which are track and field men, eight swimmers, three wrestlers, four boxers and three tennis players.

BOXING NEWS AND GOSSIP

The weekly show of the Fenway A. C. was called off on account of a slim crowd. [illegible] directors of the Back Bay organization apparently have tired of supporting enterprising boxers.

Having nothing of importance to do with the [illegible] that be at the Fenway [illegible] meeting [illegible] match maker [illegible] not it would be kind if we were to congratulate Roy Green of Charlestown on the fact he was the choice of the directors.

The Fenway A. A. is probably the most mismanaged [illegible] big sporting [illegible] A fine [illegible] tive shows [illegible] refuse to [illegible] maker. There [illegible] men who [illegible] way A. A. a winner.

Johnny McGann would make an ideal man for this position. He directed affairs at the Atlas A. A. when it was holding some of the biggest ring contests in [illegible]

Roy Green, of course, may prove a wonderful success. At any rate he cannot put on any poorer shows than those which have been offered at the Back Bay club [illegible] We would like to see [illegible] but with an experienced man like McGann on the job it would be merely a question of who the stars he would have at a particular show.

One local boxing official, who proved a flivver as a matchmaker, might be a little more successful if he attended a little more to his own affairs. He recently threatened a newspaper photographer who was trying to take a picture of one of the principals in a court case. Such tactics always end unsatisfactorily for the person who is contemptible enough to employ them; this is especially true when said person depends more or less upon publicity for his success.

Johnny Donovan, South Boston lightweight, will attempt to secure a match with the winner of the Parker-Boyle fight tonight. Donovan is every bit as good a performer as either of these men. In fact, there is not a lightweight in New England who can boast of having a whole lot on Joe McCarthy's puncher. And we are not overlooking Young Britt, Dan McCormack, Young Kloby and several others rated highly hereabouts.

The Britt-Dundee bout at Portland on the holiday was a hippodrome, according to authentic reports received by the writer. Neither boxer exerted himself and disappointed the 4,000 fans who paid grand opera prices to see the mill.

The rival boxers were booed and hissed throughout the contest, while many of the fans left before the final round had been completed.

Britt said in his dressing room, after the contest, that he had grown "stale" as a result of overwork. Dundee blamed his poor showing to the fact that he has lost his "pep" as a result of long service in the ring. He claimed he was planning to retire.

MAN PLAYING SECOND MUST BE QUICK THROW EXPERT

THIS is the ninth of a series of 100 articles by Hugh S. Fullerton, celebrated baseball expert, on "How to Play Baseball." In this lesson Mr. Fullerton continues to tell how to play second base. These articles will be a feature of the American's sport pages each day. Don't miss them.

No man should attempt to play second base for any team unless he can throw underhand with a snap motion. To be successful a young player should cultivate the style of throw made by the quick snap of the wrist across the body and never should attempt an overhand throw unless the ball is hit to him sharply and the runner is slow.

BALL HIT STRAIGHT AT 2ND BASEMAN SNAPPED TO FIRST BASE

SPEED IS EVERYTHING.

In the old days of the game it was said that second basemen were chiefly good shortstops whose arms had worn out and who could no longer make the long throws across the infield. The only truth in this was that, frequently, players whose arms no longer could stand the strain of the long overhand throw from short or third base, cultivated the snap throw with the wrist and became capable second basemen.

The strength of a throw from second base has little to do with playing the position, but the quickness with which the ball is started toward first has everything to do with it. The second baseman who winds up to make a throw loses so much time that almost any speedy runner will beat the ball to first base unless the ball is batted to the left of the second baseman.

In seventy cases out of a hundred the second baseman gets a ball to his right while moving toward second base or straight at him. In either case his body is in such a position that he is compelled to make a half or a quarter turn toward first base to make an overhand throw, whereas by practicing throwing with the wrist across the body underhand the ball can be whipped to the first baseman without a change of position of the body. The time saved is frequently the difference between an out and a base hit.

HOW EVERS BECAME KING.

That the ability to throw in that manner can be acquired is certain. Two instances are sufficient. They are Jack Barry, who, a great shortstop moved to second base and learned to throw with the snap motion and John Evers one of the greatest of them all, who was threatened with dismissal from the Chicago Cubs because he threw overhand and allowed runners to beat the ball and within a week of practice, learned to snap the ball under hand and [illegible]

YALE FOOTBALL MEN REPORT SEPTEMBER 15

New Haven, Ct., June 3.—Yale's varsity football squad has been ordered to report here September 15 by [illegible] June 15.

More than 120 candidates will be requested to report, as Yale expects the biggest football season in its history.

"TWO AND THREE"

"PUTTING THE NEXT ONE OVER"

WITH "BUGS" BAER

The Old Hay Helmet.

A COUPLE of birds were married in an airplane the other day and flew around on a twenty-minute honeymoon. They hung up two new records. One was getting married in an airplane. And their honeymoon lasted three minutes and seventeen seconds longer than the average honeymoon.

* * *

SOME folks wonder why there are so many brides in June. Other cuckoos have wondered when a honeymoon is over. A woman gets married in June so that she can pick out her hubbo's straw bonnet. And the honeymoon is cured when she picks out the weed chapeau.

* * *

STRAW in the field looks natural. It's only when it's parked on top of a bird's skullpiece that it starts to look unnatural. Hay is dried grass, straw is dried hay, a Summer kelly is dried straw, but a hubbo wearing a wife-picked straw crown is all wet. You said it.

* * *

GRASS is a vegetable product, straw is vegetable, hay is vegetable, a [illegible] halo is vegetable, but, sweet jazzboes, how is it that as soon as a [illegible] fish crawls inside of one of those wife selected vegetarian bonnets he immediately resembles a cannibal? The answer ain't in the book.

* * *

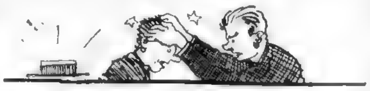
A GENT has his choice of three brands of hats for the mosquito bite season. He can wear a Summer derby, he can gallop around in last year's repeater or he can flatwheel around under the one man straw top that the wiff picks out of the annual raffle. He hasn't got much of a vote. A plebiscite of inhabitants doesn't include hubberinos. When you consider that one sad straw hat can ruin an entire skull it gets to be a serious matter, as the ostrich said when he swallowed an alarm clock full of yeast cakes.

* * *

THERE ain't much nutrition in a straw hat store. It's full of hay helmets and mirrors. It would make a beautiful pasturage for a cow [illegible] glass eater. We don't know what the mirrors are for. The salesman fixes 'em so that the victim of the wire picked hay headpiece can see himself eleven times. The result is something like the big roughhouse scene in Brynes Brothers' Eight Bells. The sapp wearing the hat looks like ice cream cones with ears. Multiply this atrocity by eleven and you have the only thing that the Turks forgot to try on the Armenians.

* * *

A WISE old cracker who lived long before the income tax and government uncontrolled railroads chirped that we should make hay while the sun shines. He was right. You also want to wear it when the sun shines. If you get the two dollars' worth of ribbon and hay wet, it will last about as long as the tips on a pair of nickel shoelaces. But while it's on the job and the knob it sure can make you walk pretty. Uneasy lies the head that wears a straw crown. There's some give to a soft hat. There's even some give to a brown derby.



YOUR grandfather gives [illegible] old man and the old man gives you. But there's no give [illegible] hay helmet. They are not [illegible] concrete mixing machines [illegible] they might as well be. If a brown derby doesn't fit, the salesman changes the shape of it. But if a straw doesn't fit the salesman has to change the map of your skull [illegible] with [illegible] at. If your forehead is in the wrong place, he [illegible] until you have to have [illegible] hair cut by a dentist. After [illegible] jammed on like a [illegible] a flivver, you look like a [illegible] sparrow nest. The result is [illegible] of migrating bunions that [illegible] chiropodist dizzy. They generally look for those things in [illegible] think with a limp for the rest of the Summer and can always prognosticate changes of weather by the pains in your skull corns.

* * *

THE wiff peels two bills off of your three-bill bankroll and high heels out of the hat abbatoir as if she had the world cheated to death. You flutter after her with a lumbago expression slightly accelerated with facial cramps. The old roof feels like a porcupine looks. But the two bills are in, and there is no comeback. You can't take the hat off because your head would puff up and you couldn't get it on again.

* * *

BUT the wiff is satisfied. She picked you out and made a mistake, so she might as well pick out your hats and make it unanimous.

Venus Increasing in Splendor

NO star in the whole sky is now comparable in brightness with the planet Venus. It will become still brighter as the month advances, but even now on a clear, dark night it glows near the western horizon with astonishing splendor. Most of this light is reflected from its apparently cloud-filled atmosphere. Jupiter is seen west of Venus.

What Is the Ideal Modern Husband?

THE war has wrought many changes in the social and economic life of our country.

It has taught women to assert their equality with men and enabled them to prove it in a thousand different fields.

It has given to men a new insight into the capabilities of their wives, their mothers, their sweethearts and their sisters.

Hundreds of thousands of girls under the impulse of financial independence have thrown aside their old notions of what an ideal husband should be and now judge him by new standards.

Exactly what is the ideal modern husband?

The Boston American invites its girl and women readers to send in their ideas on this interesting question.

A prize of $25 will be awarded for the letter which, in the opinion of the judge, embodies the clearest and most unbiased answer. For the letter adjudged second best $10 will be awarded, and for the letter adjudged third best $5.

The decisions, will be made by Beatrice Fairfax.

Confine your letter to 200 words, write on one side of the paper only and give your name and address. Only initials will be used if you so prefer.

The contest closes Saturday noon, June 7. No letters received after that date will be considered. The announcement of the winners will be made during the week of June 16.

Address letters to Boston American, Magazine Page, No. 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass.

The Birthplace of the Stars

By Garrett P. Serviss

T[illegible]

[illegible] intelligence was once a [illegible] force in the womb [illegible] that we begin to apprehend [illegible]

[illegible] more firmly the connection between stars and nebulae. This new type of spectrum is shown by a [illegible] known as Hubble's variable nebula, which is attached to the variable star R Monocerotis.

Photographs of the spectrum of this object made at the Lowell Observatory lead Dr. Slipher to think that the luminosity of this nebula and of [illegible] in the [illegible] N. G. C. 6 29[illegible] may be of the nature of reflected [illegible] of the light being [illegible] embedded in, or at least connected with the nebula. Taking Hubble's nebula as a whole, both star and gaseous mass, its spectrum bears a close resemblance to that of a temporary star, as for instance, the new star that shone out in Auriga in 1892. The star in Hubble's nebula is placed at one end like the nucleus of a comet (a similar arrangement appears to prevail with the other nebula mentioned) and the light [illegible] star is of the same character as that of the nebula. If the [illegible] shines by reflection from the [illegible] spectral similarity is accounted for.

[illegible] may be vaporous, gas[illegible] a dusty or pulverulent [illegible] in any case its intimate connection in origin and history with the star to which it is attached appears evident. Dr. Slipher believes that the class of "reflection nebulae" may include such strange objects as the glowing clouds intermingled with the Pleiades and condense around the principal stars of that cluster, and also that they are, in some way, associated with the enigmatical dark nebulae of which Barnard has discovered many wonderful examples.

When the nebula condenses into a star and the star cools off and becomes a habitable world and living organisms make their appearance upon that world whence do they come? The answer of science was given, in bold outline by Tyndall in his above quoted statement. Just as the future rocks and minerals and metals of the earth were potentially present in the original nebula, so, too, was the protoplasm, the life-stuff, that was to give birth to the organic beings.

You cannot detect the oak in its mother acorn, and just so the world was invisible in its mother nebula. Our line of life runs far back of the first mammal, and the first vertebrate and the first mollusk and the first protoplasmic cell—it reaches into the heart of the primal nebula, where mind itself slumbered, unconscious, unborn, amid the hum of the thoughtless atoms.

A Reversible Cape

By Rita Stuyvesant

CAPES have triumphed over topcoats for Spring wear, and never before have so many distinctive models of such varied material been worn. The Avenue, these lovely days, shows a promenade of the smart set, and the woman who is not wearing a trim tailored suit, wears a cape to advantage over her one-piece frock. As Spring advances, new models are being designed, and one of the latest creations is the reversible cape that may be worn on either side.

A cape of navy blue tricotine is lined with pale gray tricotine and is like the proverbial dark cloud with the silver lining. It swings gracefully from a small fitted shoulder yoke and falls in folds to the knees. Heavy silk fringe, both gray and navy, outlines the bottom and adds an attractive touch to the cape.

Another new note that distinguishes the "latest models" is the taffeta collars that remind one of the picturesque "Red Riding Hood." Cut on the bias, these collars wrinkle gracefully up around the back of the neck and narrow down in the front.

Another type of cape that is proving its popularity is made with straps that cross over the chest and button in the back, concealed under the garment. These models are also reversible and generally combine navy with sand color.

Tricotine is both good-looking and serviceable for those new wraps, and is sometimes lined with taffeta. Capes of this kind do well for evening affairs over the dance frock. Gay linings are selected, such as French blue, tan or henna. Figures or other striped linings are not appropriate for reversible capes, although they are very smart for day-time wear.

New View of Housework

IT'S NOT ONLY A MATTER OF WORK AND HOURS

By Loretto C. Lynch

U[illegible]

[illegible] What had changed this woman's viewpoint? [illegible] seemed to [illegible] gossipping and [illegible] other women how foolish she was to be keeping house.

Then Mrs. Kerr came back to the old town on a visit. She was still a good looking woman. Her attire was perfect. She [illegible] in white kid gloves [illegible] we immediately noticed was a certain look in her eyes that none of us had ever noticed there before. Then she began.

"No, I'm not the woman I used to be. I've changed my name. Let no one ever tell you, as I once did, that housework is slavery, drudgery and all that tommyrot."

"When Mr. Kerr's sudden end came, we were leading the false, the artificial life of a hotel. We had no home because I wouldn't keep house. No neighbor with good-natured sympathy came to lend a helping hand."

It was bad enough to be absolutely alone at the end, but can you imagine my predicament when I learned there was practically no money left after defraying the funeral expenses?

All my life I talked about [illegible] hour jobs. Why, you remember how I always condemned housework because it was not an eight-hour job? Well, I got an eight-hour job in a department store. Not only did I have to stand up practically all day and accept with a smile the abuse of customers such as I once was, but I had to hang on a strap both to and from my work each day. After a year in this great training school I met Jim [illegible] Bennet. [illegible] from the West [illegible] a ranch[illegible]

I married him and [illegible] I do all my own work.

"But what brought this different attitude toward housework?" we chorused.

"Thinking," she said, and again we noticed that look in her eyes. "I came to realize that there are certain kinds of work in the world that are beyond [illegible] measuring and the more [illegible] ally we look at housekeeping and home-making the more noble and the less menial does it appear."

The Rhyming Optimist

By Aline Michaelis

I SING the festive month of May, when all the kids are Maying and out among the cows and hay I long to go a-playing. I think it would be fine indeed to live out in the timber, to raise fresh buttermilk and feed and grow quite young and limber. I'd like to keep a bee or so and have a lot of honey, some raisin buns I'd surely grow; that is, if I'd a bunny. I'd have an eggplant full of eggs, a castor-bean for castors, and, 'til the place was on its legs, I'd grow some china asters, so I'd not have to buy a dish nor think of my expenses. The water plant would yield me fish, the pole-bean make my fences. From rag-weed rugs of rag I'd weave and pie-plants I would nourish. [illegible] on their branches I'd perceive large pies to make me flourish. I love to sing the hilly hills, the woods with trees o'erflowing, they are enough to cure all ills, to keep joy always growing. As for this festive month of May, when everyone is playing, I wish that it could always stay, we'd have twelve months of Maying. Milkweed, I'm sure's not hard to raise, its culture is not trying. So I'd have milk for all my days without the cost of [illegible]. It's a happy thing, this back to nature turning, and that's why Maytime makes me sing and fills me full of yearning to get out in the timber's tail and stray and keep on straying through spring and summer time and fall, where bugs and bees are Maying.

Bad Complexions Peeled Off at Home

The girl with the poor complexion complains, I have to touch up my cheeks. I am sallow and a sight, and only my makeup saves me.

Now, as a matter of fact, more women spoil their good looks than improve them with cosmetics. The practice certainly is unnecessary, now that the virtues of ordinary mercolized wax as a beautifier have become known. It has been found that the wax has wonderful absorbent powers. It causes the faded or discolored scarf skin to flake off in minute, almost imperceptible particles, so gently, gradually as to cause no inconvenience at all. In this way the old complexion is actually removed—likewise all fine lines, freckles, pimples, blotches, moth patches and other surface defects. A new complexion appears—a clear, smooth, youthful, healthy hued skin such as no paint, powder or cream can [illegible]. Mercolized wax, to be had at any drug store in convenient size package, is applied like cold cream and removed [illegible]

Stocks Irregular in New York at End of Morniug

OILS ADVANCED AND STEELS RECEDED

Studebaker Weak Among Motors; Rails and Copper Rule Lower

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were irregular in New York at noon, but prices were then above the lowest of the morning. There was a rallying tendency near the end of the second hour. After a strong beginning and a recessional period, the market became steady and without pronounced trend. Oils were weak for awhile but advanced later as a group, while steels receded.

Bethlehem B was one of about the only issue of this kind to show much strength at any time during the forenoon. At its lowest U. S. Steel was off a point and a half. Coppers and rails were quiet and averaged lower. Studebaker was the weakest among motors, which were strong as a class. Mexican Petroleum had a wide range, fluctuating more than seven points and recovering a large loss before midday. The market was active, first hour transactions totalling 436,000 shares.

Among the strongest issues at noon were Atlantic Gulf, Marine common, American Woolen common, Baldwin, Central Leather, Maxwell, Pan American, Pressed Steel Car and Pierce Arrow. They were showing from two to more than five points gain.

Among the weakest were Studebaker, Southern Pacific, Nova Scotia Steel, Corn Products and Utah Copper. They had declined from one to more than seven points. The largest loss was suffered by Nova Scotia Steel.

U. S. Steel was off ⅝ at 109, after selling down to 108¼.

PRICES UP AT OPENING.

Trading began with stocks in demand, and first prices in most instances were higher than at the close on Monday. A number of leaders advanced a point or more, while General Motors began at the new highest record price of 222½, a 3½-point gain. It sold still higher immediately. American Woolen and Pierce Arrow also started at new record highs. A number of issues opened at new highs for the year. Studebaker and Mexican Petroleum, however, declined on initial transactions, the latter a point and the former more than two. But early changes were fractional as a rule. After a few minutes demand diminished and offerings for profit were sufficient to cause a reaction and the market took on an irregular aspect.

MEXICAN PETROLEUM WEAKER.

Mexican Petroleum weakened considerably during the first hour and being under insistent selling pressure. Its advance yesterday inspired as much comment as anything connected with that remarkable market. This morning it was said that its big advance at that session—it showing eighteen points gain at its highest—was due to a drive against the short interest. There were also talk of its figuring in a big oil deal. But the latter obtained little credit from well-informed interests. Wall Street is rife with rumors concerning combines, deals and shifts in control in a number of important corporations.

LOOK FOR CONTINUED RISE.

Most of the traders now look for a continued advance in prices and there are few who will venture a prediction as to when the bull movement will end. As the price of commodities, labor and about everything imaginable are soaring, it seem to be logical at the moment that security valuations should keep pace with the ascension. Inflation apparently has no present bounds. It is to be hoped that the reaction will not be as pronounced as the advance. However, the standard investment issues are not being made the medium for an orgy of speculation, and there is always less harm done when gamblers lose money than when investors gets cleaned out.

New York Sub-Treasury Gain

New York, June 3.—The sub-treasury gained $1,578,000 from the banks on Monday, making the cash net gain since Friday of $941,000.

Mayflower-Old Colony Weakens, but Coppers Up as a Group

The Boston market opened steady and during the morning a majority of active issues were above their previous closing price. Late in the morning gains compared with declines were in the ratio of two to one.

Among the strongest stocks were Pacific Mills, Stewart, American Woolen preferred, American Bosch Magneto and Copper Range. During the forenoon they had all ben up a point or more.

Woolen preferred and Bosch sold at record highest prices and Wolverine, East Butte, New Cornelia and Copper Range at their 1919 highest.

Mayflower-Old Colony was weak, declining more than a point. United Shoe and United Fruit receded fractionally. Packing issues ruled a little lower and low-priced copper shares a little higher. Helvetia and Nipissing were lower.

The market was active throughout the forenoon.

SUGAR REFINERS ARE HOLDING LARGER STOCKS

Stocks of raw sugar now held by refiners are larger in their total than supplies at a corresponding time last year. Equalization Board statistics show a total at all ports of 230,327 tons compared with 155,963 tons a year ago. From these figures it is believed that refiners will be able to continue to operate plants to capacity extent.

Meetings by sugar refiners at Boston, New York and Philadelphia to May 25, 1909, were 1,164,228 tons, compared with 941,903 tons for same period last year.

Yale & Towne Manufacturing Co. declared a special dividend of 10 per cent. on the common stock payable July 15 on stock of record June 10.

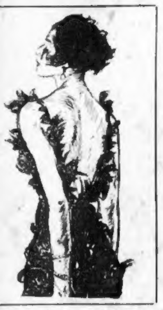
Is This a Cave Woman?

If Not, Have Modern Fashions Gone Back to the Original Society Lady?

Copyright, 1919, by Star Company.



What do you think? Is this the picture of a modern woman in an up-to-date gown, or is she what remained of one of our remote female ancestors after her husband had physically expressed his disapproval of the way his dinosaur steak was cooked?

If it is the latter, the cave-man husband has certainly ruined a good bearskin dress for wear in any but the warmest weather.

If it is the former, how nearly have we gone back to antediluvian times for modern fashions.

The illustration is a part of the frontispiece to the June number of Harper's Bazar, the most authoritative of American fashion magazines. It was drawn by Drian, one of the most famous of Paris illustrators.

In order to decide the questions asked, you will have to see the rest of Drian's picture. If you like, before you look at the magazine you can draw in the background what you think most appropriate and then compare it with the great artist's idea. It is a good opportunity for you to exercise your imagination.

If You Like Daylight Saving Sign the Petition

If you like the Daylight Saving Law, which gives you an additional hour of daylight in the Summer and early Fall in which to play, or garden, or to do whatever else pleases you, then you ought to sign the petition which appears in the American addressed to your Congressman urging him to vote against the repeal of the Daylight Saving Law. It is being seriously threatened and if you neglect to let him know how you feel about it you may contribute to its repeal.

This is supposed to be a democracy, but no kind of democratic institutions are automatic. If you want your government to obey your wishes, you must take the trouble to indicate these wishes. The American provides you with a handy way to make your wishes known with respect to the Daylight Saving Law to the man who represents you in Congress, where the fate of the Daylight Saving Law will be settled.

Why America Owes the Jews World Protection

The official records of the War and Navy Departments disclose the fact that more than 200,000 American Jews saw service in our army and navy during the war. This is 5 per cent. of the total number of American soldiers and sailors in the service.

Now, the Jewish population of the United States is only 3 per cent. of the total population of the country. Therefore, to have supplied 60 per cent. more than their quota to our army and navy in time of war is a credit to the Jews which cannot be passed unnoticed.

The contribution which the American Jews have made to our victory ought to make their voice decisively heard when it is raised in protest against the persecution and slaughter of the Jews in the countries which border upon the territory controlled by Bolshevik Russia.

A prominent Jew, who is trying to alleviate the suffering of his race in the Baltic provinces and in Poland, reports that the persecutions of the Jews continue unabated wherever the reactionary interests, the great landlords or the capitalistic party gets control of a community inhabited by Jews.

Guarantees of freedom of religion everywhere would be one of the very first clauses American peace delegates would dictate in any treaty creating new republics to which they subscribed.

This is impossible at Paris, however, because Great Britain would not sign such a treaty. The British Constitution recognizes only one church, and no heir apparent to the English throne may marry anyone not a communicant of the Established Church of England, although nowhere is religion freer than in the British dominions.

But when our American government gets through repeating its "Amens" to the imperialistic treaty making at Paris, it may have time to examine the complaint which the Jews are making concerning the cruelties inflicted upon their race in Poland, Rumania and the Baltic provinces. It may consider that the contribution which the Jews have made to our victory imposes some obligation at least to PROTEST against the continuance of these bloody persecutions.

STARTING BUSINESS FOR YOURSELF

You have a few dollars saved and you long to get into business.

Have you ever been dead honest with yourself and weighed whether you are qualified to make a success in business?

It is true, isn't it, that at certain times you do certain things by way of amusement, and wouldn't you be uneasy if you could not continue to carry out your accustomed schedule?

You would not be willing to make even business your first thought at all times, and a successful business man must sacrifice whatever interferes with his business interests.

Would you be willing to take money from the business only at such times as the business warranted it, instead of regularly drawing your salary as at present?

Have you the courage, stamina and ability to struggle with problems which are baffling, and of which the correct solution means continued business, while a mistake, even slight, might send you to the wall?

Can you sit and plan out practical ways of making more business, or do you find that only a little thinking of this sort tires you and you would consider it a hard matter to give it up? In other words, would you succeed?

THE AUTOMOBILE "IF"

(Apologies to R. K.)

If you can keep your car when all about you
  Are losing theirs to thieves on every side;
If you can do this little thing, no doubt you
  Stick closely to the car when out to ride;
If you, for just one unforgiving minute,
  Should leave the car and walk around the block;
Good-by, machine, and everything that's in it,
  The gang has got another one to hock.

The epidemic of automobiles being A. W. O. L., or "absent without leave," as service men express it, has created a vitriolic demand for some sure way of foiling the auto-snatchers. Among the few rules so far found effective are the following:

1. Don't own a car.
2. If you must own a car, don't use it.
3. If you must use it, don't leave it alone.
4. If you are going to take your girl to ride, don't get out and call at her door. Stop at the curb, sound your horn, yell, ring a bell or a rattle, or throw a rock up at her window. But stick by the car. If you go into the house your car may be stolen and maybe you'll never get another.
5. Avoid crowds. Avoid everybody. If you are driving along a lonely road and see a man walking toward you, turn around and go the other way. He is probably a field agent for the auto gang.
6. Take the car to bed with you at night.
7. If a stranger comes to your house tell the maid you are not "at home," skip out the back way and run your car into a far country.
8. Put a sign on your windshield: "Property of the Pest House."
9. If you must leave your car standing take essential parts with you, the carbureter, tires, differential, tonneau and chassis.
10. Join the auto gang and be protected.

SCIENCE ON WHY EARTH REVOLVES ABOUT

By Garrett P. Serviss

"What takes place when iron rusts away, and where does the rusted iron go? Does it rust quicker in the air or in water?—W. L., Somerville, Mass.

WHEN iron "rusts" it combines with oxygen and forms substances known as oxide and hydroxide of iron. The combination with oxygen causes the iron to lose its firm, rigid texture, instead of which it takes the form of a fine powder or dust, usually of a reddish color. The iron thus combined is not "lost"; it is simply changed in character and appearance. Since, in its new form, it is easily blown or brushed away, it may seem to have vanished, although it has really only been dispersed.

The process of rusting is called "slow oxidation." In perfectly dry air iron does not rust. The presence of moisture is essential to set the action going. The agents concerned in rusting are oxygen, carbon-dioxide and hydrogen. Both air and water contain oxygen, but the hydrogen comes from the water, and the carbon-dioxide usually from the air.

Iron and Water

Experiment has shown that iron in contact with water and oxygen does not rust unless there is carbon-dioxide present. But there are some other acids besides carbon-dioxide which may induce rusting, such as sulphurius and nitric acids and others found in smoke from chimneys. Whether iron rusts more rapidly in water or in air depends upon circumstances. If the water is pure and free from bubbles of air, no rust appears, but a trace of carbon-dioxide in the water produces rust very quickly.

"Can it be truly said of the earth that it is 'spinning' on its axis? I am aware that it is revolving, but, try as I may to visualize it I cannot conceive how the twenty-four-hour revolution can approach anything like a spinning motion, which in the case of a body, say, the size of an orange would probably be 200 revolutions per minute, at least. Assuming a body one foot in diameter to be revolving 200 turns per minute, what rate of revolution for the earth would proportionately equal this?—L. P. L., New York."

All this is a beautiful illustration of the principle of relativity. Magnify a man to such a stature that the earth would be to him only as an orange is to us, and also magnify, in the same proportion, his conception of time, so that his "minute" would be relatively as much longer than ours as his stature was greater, and then the earth would, indeed, seem to him to "spin," although it continued to take twenty-four hours for a single turn.

If the one-foot ball revolved at the same angular velocity as the earth's, it would make only one turn in twenty-four hours, and its motion would be imperceptible to the eye. But if its rotational velocity were inversely proportional to its diameter as compared with the earth's diameter, it would turn 40,000,000 times in twenty-four hours, or nearly 2,800 times in a minute.

Even to an ordinary human being the earth would seem to spin if he could only detach himself from it, and remain motionless just above its surface while it continued to turn beneath him.

If you saw the grass, the trees, the houses, and the people speeding past at that rate as you hung a few yards above them, you would have no difficulty in visualizing the rotation of the earth as a "spin."

On the Other Hand

However, as you receded to a great distance from the earth the speed of its rotation would become less spectacular, because then it would be its angular rate of turning as a whole that you would take note of. Viewed from a distance of about 700 miles, the motion of a point on the earth travelling between twelve and thirteen miles a minute would carry it, in that space of time, over an angular distance of only about one degree, and when you got as far away as the moon, the angular space moved over by the same point, in one minute, would be imperceptible without powerful instruments of measurement.

INSPIRATION IN STORY OF A GOOD WOMAN

By Winifred Black

A GOOD woman died in this neighborhood yesterday. A capable woman she was and strong, and every one went to her for comfort and for counsel and for help.

When one of the girls was falling in love with the wrong kind of a man the girl's mother went to the Good Woman and told her about it. The Good Woman was going for a visit to a ranch in the mountains and she invited the girl to go with her and the girl went, and there was a handsome young man at the ranch and there were horseback rides and picnics, and the moon shone and the eglantine was fragrant in the garden and in the corral the little, moon-eyed calves baahed mournfully. There were young colts to feed and fluffy yellow chickens to watch, and wild flowers to gather and old books of verse to be read around the lamp at nightfall. And, somehow, the wrong kind of a man wasn't the right kind of a man for the girl any more, and she went home absolutely cured of her feverish folly.

When the youngest boy grew beyond himself and was impudent to his mother and sullen to his father—the Good Woman thought of a job for him in another city, something rather hard and not very pleasant, but a job of his own, among strangers. And the youngest boy went and took the job, and came home in six months—a man. And now he's at work with his father and he's the pride and joy of the whole family.

Everyone Trusted Her

When there was a quarrel in the church and the soprano in the choir was telling the contralto exactly what she thought of her, and the Sunday school superintendent was freeing his mind in regard to the bass singer and everything looked like an old-fashioned row that would end in a split, the Good Woman organized a series of charades and managed it so that each of them had a prominent part, and lo, the breach was healed.

When the poor little woman in the lower end of the town slipped on the ice by her dark little door and broke her leg and hurt herself very badly indeed, and those who had slipped down to her door in the dark many and many a time did not dare to go and see her—the Good Woman heard of it and she made up a little basket of provisions and took along some lemons and oranges and a thermometer and went down and nursed the woman who lived in the dark.

On the second day she came home for her elderdown quilt and you could see that she had been crying and she said it was too bad that the woman had been hurt. But perhaps, after all, it was for the best, for she wasn't such a bad woman at heart after all—she was just weak, and she took her to another town and got sewing for her and that woman wept her heart out when the Good Woman died, and sent a great sheaf of lilies to the funeral with a card that said, "From one who is not worthy."

Strong she was, and noble; good she was, and wise.

True she was and faithful, brave she was and full of splendid, eager courage.

Every one who knew her trusted her. No—every one didn't love her, she was too genuine for that.

Some people thought her conceited and overbearing and some said she had too high an opinion of her own judgment, and there were those who always insisted that it was perfectly easy for her to be good because she never wanted to be anything else. But, oh, what are we going to do without her, now that she is gone?

Who is going to be calm in the face of danger, and cool in the hour of affright?

Who is going to stand like a rock between us and the shaking terror of that dreadful hour?

Who?

How Little We Know

But the strangest thing of all is that when she died they found a locket around her neck. And in the locket was a little curl from the head of her little, little boy that died long years ago.

And there also were the picture of her mother and a clipping from an old newspaper—a poem.

Backward, turn backward,
  Oh, Time in your flight!
Make me a child again,
  Just for tonight!

Those who knew her best say that it was her favorite poem. So strong, so cool, so clear-headed, so self-reliant—and yet—in her heart of hearts she wanted to be just a little loved - and - cared - for child again.
